Polish Plane Crashes

WARSAW—A Polish airliner carrying 51 persons crashed last night near Cracow, Poland. Warsaw radio said. All 46 passengers and five crewmen are believed killed.
The plane was an AN-24 bound for Cracow from Warsaw. Cause of the crash was still unknown last night.

Teachers May March

CHICAGO—Members of the Chicago Teachers Union yesterday called for a march of teachers to Springfield April 22 to demand increased state aid to education. A final decision will be made at a meeting of the union's House of Representatives April 11.

John E. Desmond, president of the union, said, "The children of Chicago have been made a political football."

Big Four Talks Open

Big Four talks on the Middle East crisis will open today in New York. French Foreign Minister Michel Debre said yesterday King Hussein of Jordan said he is hopeful the negotiations will bring about permanent peace between Israel and the Arab world.

Debre's statement in Paris confirmed earlier reports from highly placed sources at the United Nations which said talks would begin without publicity.

LBJ Attends Funeral

ABILENE—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, keeping out of the spotlight since he left office, flew from Texas Wednesday to attend the burial of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His attendance was a surprise to security men, who did not know he was coming until his plane showed up above the airport at nearby Salina, Kan.

Oppose Wealth Tax

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposed a proposal to levy a minimum tax on wealthy persons who escape income taxes by taking advantage of certain legal deductions.

Walter Winter, chamber vice president, told the House Ways and Means committee yesterday that if Congress considers deductions improper, it should modify them rather than impose a minimum.

Talk Hope Is Low

WASHINGTON—Little if any progress has been made toward arranging secret talks which President Nixon regards as the last hope of achieving peace in Vietnam. This is the indication from statements made yesterday by State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey.

Asked if any progress had been made, McCloskey said the word "progress" would be "a little strong for me."

Bomb Threat Nipped

NEW YORK—Police uncovered a plot late yesterday to dynamite five major Manhattan department stores during the Easter shopping rush. Eleven of the 21 suspects were arrested and were described as members of the Black Panther party.

The target stores were identified as Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie and Fitch.

Press Is Censored

PRAGUE—The Czechoslovak government reimposed full press censorship yesterday, probably to prevent a crackdown by the Soviet Union. The president of the Czechoslovak Communist party said the nation is on "the brink of catastrophe."

Jaroslav Havelka, head of the committee for press and information, said, "We met with the good will and understanding of our allies."

Vote Protest Possible

Claim Ballots Misleading

Charges of irregularities in voting and a threat of an election protest followed the Salt Creek Park District race Tuesday.

Patrick Grealish was elected to a six-year term on write-in votes.

The Herald received numerous complaints of misleading ballots and faulty instructions on the part of election judges including the wife of a present board member, Mrs. Gerald Ahlenius.

Etherton, district secretary, told the Herald Mrs. Ahlenius is "an experienced judge." When asked if it was unethical to have a judge related to a board member, he replied, "Her husband was not up for election this year."

Mrs. Ahlenius angrily denied that she could be prejudiced for any candidate.

"To object to me because my husband is a board member is a direct insult to my character and judgement," she said.

"I only knew Etherton among the five principals and met Marconi on election day. My husband never discussed the election and only mentioned that Etherton and Grealish would be on the ballot," she said.

"I WOULD LIKE to meet the people who objected to me," she said, adding that she is fair and showed no favoritism. She said she has a mind of her own and "no one tells me what to do."

Etherton and Grealish "just filled out the right ballot," she said.

Supporters of write-in candidates Henry Diehl, Michael Lydon and Ronald Salski charged that the ballot did not make it clear there were three positions to be filled on the board and space was provided for only two write-in candidates.

One caller told the Herald judges told him he could put write-in votes "anywhere" but when he showed the judge the ballot, she said "No, it's not correct."

"I finally found out how to fill it in properly," the man said, and "the judge tore up the ballot and gave me a new one."

He added, "When my wife couldn't understand the ballot and asked for instructions from the judges, they kept saying, 'there's the ballot' and would not help her."

ETHERTON, HOWEVER claimed, "Diehl, Lydon and Salski instructed their people in the wrong way. The judges did an excellent job," he said. "I had 30 of my own ballots thrown out, Marconi had about 15 disqualified and Grealish about 15 or 20."

"I do not feel there were any irregularities," Etherton said.

Diehl told the Herald, "We had an adequate vote, but the voters were confused," while Etherton claimed, "We beat them legitimately, even if you count the ballots that were thrown out."

A phone caller told a Herald reporter, "Etherton admitted it was a bad ballot," when the man talked to him outside the polling office.

Etherton accused Diehl, Lydon and Salski of "hitting below the belt" and said their campaign was "full of half-truths and innuendoes."

DIEHL SAID HE doesn't know what Etherton means by "hitting below the belt." He said the board had a "hostile" attitude toward people during meetings and "wouldn't recognize people who wanted to talk."

Although Diehl said he is not certain about protesting the election, Etherton said he expects a protest to be filed.

Diehl said the board has "argued among themselves over boundaries." They can't afford not to know these things after being in office so long, he said.

At the recent candidates' night at Fremd High School, Grealish replied to a

SALT CREEK FLOODING isn't quite this bad yet, but in case it ever gets this way, these Palatine and Rolling Meadows scuba divers will be prepared. They're members of the Scuba Diving Class offered by Countryside YMCA this year. Classes are held in the pool at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

Supervisor, Clerk Pay Hiked

Approval of pay hikes for the township supervisor and clerk highlighted the annual Palatine Town Meeting Tuesday night at Kimball Hill School, Rolling Meadows.

Voters also approved payment of $23,000 for mental health, $14,000 for School Dist. 15 and $950 for the Leisure Club from the township's surplus funds.

Margaret Chapman, town clerk, told the audience "I worked for $2,400 for the last four years and since I spend most of my time in the office I am entitled to a raise." Her new salary is $3,600 a year.

During the pay hike discussion, Supervisor Howard Olson, who holds the dual titles of town supervisor and supervisor of general assistance, said that "this is the time when the electors must decide on an increase for the next four years."

Olsen's new salary for both jobs is $4,800, an increase of $1,500.

"FOUR YEARS AGO the town board raised the salary of the supervisor of general assistance from $1,800 to $3,600," Olsen told the audience. He said he voted against that increase.

At the time, he recommended the board "scale it down to $1,800." Olsen said the job of supervisor deserves $3,000.

Palatine salaries are among the lowest in Cook County," Olsen added.

One man in the audience said auditors could "set outrageous salaries and we'd have to pay until they were voted out of office."

Another voter in the audience asked about the township's unpaid bills, which total $13,533.

He was told the money will "remain as an obligation" until the creditor waives it. OLSEN SAID creditors are not demanding payment and hopefully they can be paid in one year.

"This will not be a problem next year," he said.

Olsen said paying these bills would cause the township to operate with a shortage of funds. It is better to keep the unpaid bills than deny funds to mental health, schools and the leisure club, he added.

One man told his listeners that because tax money will be delayed 60 days and the operating departments will be short of money, "we should not expend money we don't have and should postpone if we can" the payment of these bills.

"We will need all the money we can get for the next 60 days," he said.

THE AUDIENCE HEARD from several speakers, including Wendell Jones who spoke about Clearbrook Center Countryside Home and the Northwest Mental Health Clinic.

When it was asked why nobody from school Dist. 15 discussed the spending of their allotment, a man said Dist. 15 was "not grabbing for more," only the money they needed.

Mrs. Elaine Lethem, chairman of the Youth Committee, told the audience that "delinquency is a greater problem than we realize" in the suburbs. As suburbs continue to grow, so will this problem, she pointed out.

Mrs. Lethem cited Emmerson Thomas, Dennis Morgan and Phil Smeja, for the fine work they have done, and added the committee is still $6,310 short of meeting its budget of $29,500.

"WE HOPE WE WILL find the extra money before the close of the year," she said.

The road budget of $191,000 was adopted.

2 'Sing-Outs' Set

Sing-Out Palatine, the first "Up With People" local singing group in the state, has launched a massive campaign to call attention to its two-hour concert, April 18 and 20 at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

To make themselves known to the people of the Northwest suburbs, the enthusiastic group has created 50 posters and printed 35,000 fliers which will be distributed in local towns, schools and churches.

Letters have been sent to 12 radio stations, and Programs, with the group's picture on the cover, are being printed.

Members of the group consider their personal appearance of vital importance and they have done something about improving it in preparation for the concerts.

THE GIRLS HAVE bought or made jumpers and blouses, and matching suit coats have been ordered for the boys. Several cast members are also painting the risers.

Sing-Out Palatine, through its activities, tries to show its enthusiasm for the ideals of "Up With People" on which it is based, and is eager to make it known to the people of the Northwest suburbs.

The performances will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, April 18 and 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, April 20. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Children will be admitted free. Persons wishing additional information are asked to write Sing-Out Palatine, Post Office Box 422, or call 358-2958.

Unseat Park Incumbents

Two write-in candidates unseated both incumbents seeking reelection to the Palatine Rural Park District board of commissioners in Tuesday's election.

Patrick Gilligan and John Scollay both polled 88 votes, while incumbents Herbert Reinshagen took 61 votes and Edwin Bartz tallied 55 votes.

The two new park commissioners are residents of subdivisions in Palatine which were instrumental in recently filing a petition to dissolve the rural park district.

Gilligan, who lives at 473 Pebble Creek Road, has lived in the Pebble Creek subdivision for about a year. Scollay, 669 Carpenter Drive, is a resident of Banbury Lane subdivision.

Homeowners from the two areas joined with several residents from Forest Estates and Creekside in Rolling Meadows to obtain enough signatures for the dissolution petition.

BOTH NEW commissioners agreed they would not give further comment about dissolving the rural park district until the first meeting of the board, called for next Monday.

"We were elected by our neighbors because we like parks," Gilligan said.

Neither newly-elected commissioner signed the dissolution petition, according to Gilligan.

Each subdivision has been interested in disannexing from the Palatine Rural Park District so they could become residents of the Palatine Park District and enjoy its existing facilities without paying non-resident fees.

Bartz and Reinshagen have been members of the rural park district board for several years, with Reinshagen serving as board president for the past few years.

The Palatine Rural Park District was organized in 1950 primarily to operate as a protective district for these residents who did not wish to pay the higher tax rate of surrounding park districts.

Steal Golf Equipment

Golf equipment valued at $270 was stolen from Thomas M. Randy from the storage area in his apartment building, 10 E. Lillian.

The equipment was taken sometime between Feb. 1 and April 1.

Slate Push for Fair Housing

Rolling Meadows Human Relations Council will focus its efforts this spring on promoting a local fair housing ordinance.

About 30 members of the council were on hand recently to hear James Perrone, director of community services of the Illinois Human Relations Commission, call upon them to reassess their commitment and set new goals.

There is nothing wrong, said Perrone, with a group getting together and talking socially that something must be done, but for the council to remain relevant it must get its purpose into focus.

The council was organized about a year ago to generate human relations interest in the community through an educational program. "But the groundswell has never developed," says Elvin W. Byrom, president.

He and the small nucleus who started the council had expected to attract many people who believe in seeking answers to the difficult humanistic problems of today.

TOO MANY OF the interested people are already deeply involved in other activities and do not have time to spare for council work.

"Somehow we haven't been able to do the job we feel we should have done," Byrom says. He is also one of the most energetic presidents the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce has had; and several years ago as library board president, he took the attitude that if a new building was needed, the community would support the cost if the need was explained.

"One thing we have done in the period of a year," he reflects, "Every single one of us have gained so much insight into the significance and nature of the problems that exist in the black-white contrasting world."

Each member, he says, was already committed to the cause, but the educational programs have "strengthened our awareness of the depth and scope of the problems."

BUT THE REST of the city seems unaware that the council exists.

"I don't understand the lack of interest," Byrom says. "Now, we're not interested in getting opposition out, except to stimulate people to think about the subject. But I'm disturbed if the opposition doesn't consider this worth thinking about."

In restructuring the council, adopting one project at a time and where a goal is reached moving on to another project, the leaders hope to create a better city-wide understanding of its purpose.

Police by Any Other Name Must Be 'Safety'

ASSEMBLY LINE production of a couple thousand armbands to identify participation in the youth-sponsored hike for the Hungry on Good Friday kept Sherry Flock and Ellen Kling busy one night this week at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

The traffic division of the Rolling Meadows Police Department could well be re-named the safety bureau.

"We're always ready to talk on safety," says Officer Charles Smith. He generally cruises about in the white squad car assigned to the traffic division when he isn't in his office, decorated with numerous safety plaques and awards.

Emphasis on public relations and driver education, Smith believes, is the best accident prevention program.

Accident investigation is another phase of the traffic division's work, and the police were able to track down and make apprehensions on 57 of the 68 hit-run incidents last year.

It's hard to trace hit-run collisions in shopping center parking lots, although crime laboratories can tell the make of car from a speck of paint left on a damaged fender. "We try to find witnesses who may have observed the other car," explains Smith. In apartment parking lots it's easier to find the offending vehicle, at least if the driver is one of the tenants.

SMITH LIKES TO relate one incident where inter-departmental co-operation helped locate a truck in Carpentersville that could be described only vaguely by the victim.

Placing the blame for an accident is meticulous business. Tire marks and position of vehicles after a collision are among the clues. Parts of damaged cars are salvaged and checked, with a crime lab called in to verify the opinion of local policemen.

But accident prevention is the most valuable work, Smith believes. Smith is assisted by Officer Dennis Van Jacobs, and now awaiting transfer from general patrol to the traffic division is Eric Bublitz.

Lack of manpower limits the number of safety programs the men can give for schools, youth organizations and church groups and to prepare young people for taking driver's license examinations. Since January 1, adults, too, will have to take tests every nine years, and the police are offering help to these people, many of them who never had to take a test before.

Safety education starts young. Smith puts on a program for the pre-school children enrolled in the Rolling Meadows Park District tot-spot.

Bicycle safety training gets a big push in spring, when youngsters start wheeling to school. Notice is served on riders who disobey regulations, and they have to attend a Saturday morning safety hearing with their parents to view films and receive instruction in correct pedalling. "We have no repeats," said Smith, "except some kids come back voluntarily to see the free movie."

SCHOOL CROSSING guards come under the traffic division supervision, and Smith is the liaison between local industries and the state and county highway departments, which have undertaken a continuing series of meetings to work out potential rush hour congestion.

The wide-spread highway construction scheduled for the next year or two is of major concern to thousands of workers in area plants.

Smith considers most of his work progressive, but the time he spends on riding the city of abandoned autos is wasted, he believes. The only satisfaction is in the post facto education of the owner, when and if found, who then has to pay the disposal costs.

The most frustrating aspect of the traffic division work perhaps is to define a problem — traffic signals, for example — and then be unable to accomplish the solution because of lack of funds or state regulations. A few weeks ago plans were completed for ordering a professional comprehensive traffic survey of the city, only to have state highway officials advise that such a survey would become obsolete before it could be completed.

So Smith redoubles his efforts on safety education as the best way to prevent accidents.

Salt Creek Vote Protest Possible —

question on Salt Creek boundaries and said he would like to know this himself, adding, "That is why I would like to be on the board. They should make these things clear to people."

DIEHL SAID HE wanted "something done with Winston Park Unit 6," a small park that is now "a mud hole," and "I'd like to see some swings and other things for children. Even some grass would help."

Board Pres. Walter Peppier said he didn't believe judges failed to give proper instructions. In regard to Diehl, Lydon and Salski, he said, "I don't know what formal complaint they could have."

Peppier denied the board had legal petitions thrown out. The three men "claimed we threw out legal petitions right up to election time," Peppier told the Herald.

He said there was "no opposition from the board" to the three men.

Marconi claimed that the grounds for complaining about faulty ballots were invalid since "the forms were printed by Pettibone Forms, a large company that prints national election ballots."

He said he was not concerned with an election protest since "they would still lose with the 51 invalid ballots."

He said he conducted a heavy "door-to-door" campaign. His wife also campaigned among the neighbors, Marconi said.

Eucharist Services At Immanuel Church

Palatine Immanuel Lutheran Church will present the second of four scheduled Holy Week Worship services today, Maundy Thursday, with Eucharist at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Eucharist services will also be held tomorrow, Good Friday, at 3, 6:30 and 9 p.m.

Easter Sunday sunrise service begins at 6 a.m. followed by Eucharist services at 7:30, 8:45, 10 and 11:30 a.m.

Gas Hits Firemen

Toxic fumes from what was described as a "violent chemical reaction" yesterday morning in Elk Grove Village, hospitalized 15 firemen, including Chief Allan Hulett.

Firemen said the mid-morning incident at Sanford Chemical Co., 1945 Touhy, Elk Grove, resulted in no serious injuries, but an unknown number of company employees and 15 firemen were hospitalized for observation.

The fumes resulting from the event included toxic chlorine gas, which could result in lung damage. The hospitalization was recommended in case treatment was needed.

Firemen said the 8:55 a.m. incident was "a violent chemical reaction," but not an explosion. It produced heavy toxic smoke, did little damage to the building, and resulted in no injuries other than inhalation of fumes.

ONE FIREMAN SAID, "It was sort of a flare up; there was no fire, and it wasn't an explosion like dynamite." He added that 15 firemen, including Hulett and the department's three full-time lieutenants, were taken to St. Alexius hospital.

Exact cause of the incident is unknown as yet, but firemen do know the fumes were produced when sodium dichloro-s-triazine was mixed with an unknown chemical, producing the reaction.

Fire officials said that no plant personnel had to be transported by ambulance to local hospitals, but examinations were recommended in case of injury from fumes.

The department called in off-duty personnel, and received manpower help from nearby fire departments to meet the immediate shortage.

Customer Gives Toy Manager Fat Lip

An unidentified woman, upset because she couldn't return a toy she bought last December, Tuesday hit the toy department manager in the face at Topps Discount Store in Rolling Meadows with the box the toy came in, then fled.

Mrs. Jeanne Zulkie, 40, 126 Geronimo, Hoffman Estates, said she was called to the service desk to talk to a woman who brought a toy in to return.

The woman told Mrs. Zulkie she was not satisfied with the toy, a Talking Machine, and that she wanted to return it to the store.

Mrs. Zulkie said the toy was purchased in December and was in a poor, used condition. She said the customer then hit her in the face and side of the head with the box. The woman, described as between 35 and 40 years old, ran from the store, pushing and shouting, "Get out of my way."

Mrs. Zulkie suffered an injured lower lip.

ey Jimmy P. Staggs, well known to the marchers — if not their parents, and a singing group known as the "Steelers."

A record by the "Steelers" will be released next week, hunger hike spokesmen said in announcing the program.

"We plan to step off promptly at 9 a.m.," the spokesman said, but declined to predict when — or how many — of the couple thousand teenage marchers will make the full route.

THE MARCH GOAL in Rolling Meadows is the Northwest Opportunity Center, one of the three agencies that will benefit from the teenagers' hike.

Persons can join the march only if they have sponsors willing to pay five cents or more a mile to the Hike for the Hungry fund.

Young people who organized the hike decided that monies raised should be split evenly between the Opportunity Center, a local self-help agency working with northwest suburban low income families; an Ecuador farm development project started with help from the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, and Red Cross aid to victims of the Nigerian-Biafran civil war.

Registration of hikers will start at 7:30 a.m. Friday at Maine East, with separate tables for enrollees from each high school and church involved in the project.

Hike spokesmen said persons who have not registered can sign up for the march that day — provided they have sponsors willing to donate to the cause.

Symphony Drive Names Chairmen

Two local women have been named to head area efforts in the $200,000 fund drive for the Chicago Symphony.

Mrs. John R. Siragusa, Barrington Hills, and Mrs. F. Joseph Scharon, Inverness, are serving as chairman and co-chairman of the drive sponsored by the Fox River Valley Committee of the Women's Committee of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

NOW BEGINNING its 78th year, the Chicago Symphony has become an integral part of the musical and cultural life of the area. However, it is presently facing the most critical financial period of its history, according to Mrs. Scharon.

Also serving on the committee are Mrs. Graham Ross and Mrs. John Coates, both from Inverness.

Barrington, Palatine, Lake Zurich, and Inverness all are included in the Fox River Valley area.

Palatine Youth Officers Elected

New officers have been elected for the Palatine Township Youth Organization.

Bill Hake of St. Viator High School is the new president. Mary Lou Fraser of Palatine High is first vice president.

Two Seeking Trustee Post

Two Palatine residents are seeking only one vacant position as township school trustee in the April 12 election.

William Heise Jr., and Michael Reese have filed candidate positions, but only one will be elected to the expiring six-year term.

John Hughes, presently seeking re-election to the village board, has served as school trustee for the past six years, but declined not to seek another term.

Heise, who lives at 546 S. Cedar, is president of the Palatine Savings and Loan.

REESE is assistant vice president of the Palatine National Bank.

The three-man board is in charge of all land owned by School Dist. 15 and responsible for the handling of funds.

Other trustees include Donald Winter, whose term expires in 1971, and Walter Vartanian, who won election to a six-year term in 1967.

The Art Is Dying, But 'Pastry Is My Life'

by GERRY DEZONNA

When John Bonnicksen left Germany in 1932, he brought with him a secret that had been in his family for more than 100 years. The Bonnicksen secret, passed proudly from one generation to the next, is one of the keys to his success today.

Bonnicksen is an artist. He is a pastry chef and a cake decorator who adds a creativity to his recipes that distinguishes excellence from mediocrity.

His occupation is an art that is dying in this country because the "commercial" bakeries are mass producing cakes and pastries for sale every day.

"This is progress," said Bonnicksen, "but for me, pastries and cake decorations are works of art. Now, most of the pastry chefs are Europeans, because Americans do not seem to be interested in the art of making pastries and cakes."

Bonnicksen, a Mount Prospect resident, is the pastry chef at the Northmoor Country Club in Highland Park. He makes all of the pastries, cakes, and cookies for the restaurant at the club, as well as preparing special cakes and pastries for weddings and parties.

BONNICKSEN AND HIS wife sailed to New York in 1932 on their honeymoon. "We came to Chicago to visit an uncle of mine who owned a bakery. Well, when we arrived, he needed help at the bakery, so I went to work for him. We've been here ever since then," he explained.

Bonnicksen didn't know one word of English, and he's never had any formal training in the language. "I learned most of my English by watching the television. It was a matter of sinking or swimming, so I had to learn quickly."

At home, the Bonnicksens speak only English to their four children. "If my children want to learn German, then they will study the language in school, and of course we will help them," explained Bonnicksen. "But we want them to learn English first because they will make their homes here."

Bonnicksen learned his trade in Germany when he was 15 years old. He was an apprentice to a pastry chef during the day, and he attended school at night.

"My family has been in the pastry and cake decorating business for more than a 100 years. My uncle was a pastry chef, but he was killed during the war. So I am the last pastry chef in our family now," said Bonnicksen.

HIS SPECIALTIES are sugar-pulled decorations and wedding cakes. "There is a thrill in decorating a cake, because there is a finished product, and you will know if you've done the task well," he explained. "It's an art, and I get great satisfaction from creating with my hands."

Sugar-pulled decorations are difficult to make, and it takes talent and years of experience to create shapes and forms from a mixture of sugar and water. Sugar-pulled decorations are used for table centerpieces or cake decorations.

Bonnicksen heats the sugar and water mixture to 310 degrees or until it reaches a "syrupy" consistency. The mixture is then poured onto a marble table top, and he begins to work and form it into different shapes and figures.

Bonnicksen works with the hot mixture with his bare hands, pulling and stretching and shaping it into the delicate forms and figures that he wants. "One hazard in making sugar-pulled decorations is that I get blisters from working with the hot mixture," explained the chef. "I have to work quickly before it hardens into candy."

Sugar-pulled decorations, such as rosebuds, bows and figurines, are used for cake decorations, and large sugar-pulled creations are used for table centerpieces.

BONNICKSEN HAS MADE every kind of pastry and cake, and he spends a lot of his spare time creating new recipes and mixing ingredients to find a new slant on sweetness. He has invented a fruit pound-cake strudel which has been a great success on the pastry cart at the country club.

"One of the most difficult pastries to make is Hungarian apple strudel," admitted the pastry artist. "The difficult part is stretching and rolling the dough, so that it is paper thin without any tears or bubbles in the dough. Then I add the apple filling, and the dough must be rolled evenly and smoothly so that the pastry is light and fluffy."

The art of making pastries and decorating cakes requires talent, years of experience and dedication. "My pastry is my life," said the chef. "It's an art, and I could never have it any other way."

The secret that has been in his family for more than 100 years is that the ingredients for any pastry is perfection and pride.

Interfaith Open Houses Set

The Rolling Meadows Ministerial Fellowship has initiated a series of openhouse visits at churches of various faiths, titled Operation Understanding, starting Sunday, May 4.

The first visit will be held at Saint Colette Church, 3900 South Meadow Drive 2:30 p.m.

Purpose of the series is to increase an awareness of what people of other faiths believe and practice and to foster friendship and understanding among people of diverse religious backgrounds.

Churches involved in Operation Understanding are: Bethel Lutheran Church, Rolling Meadows Baptist Church, Trinity Lutheran Church, Community Church of Rolling Meadows and Saint Colette's Catholic Church.

EACH CHURCH will have its open house on a Sunday afternoon from 2:30 until 5 in May, June, September, October and November.

The programs will feature tours of church facilities, explanations of teaching and practice, question-and-answer periods, and coffee and refreshments.

Members of all congregations and anyone else interested are invited.

They Like Moats

If applause is any indication, Larry Moats, the young Harper Junior College candidate, gained much support from Palatine residents Monday evening as he spoke at the League of Women Voters' candidates night.

One of three candidates seeking two positions on the college board, Moats was the only Harper candidate to attend the forum.

A student at the Junior college, Moats got a comment on his age from someone in the audience.

"Most people here probably don't realize that you will be having your 21st birthday on April 10, just two days before the election," the questioner said.

HE CONTINUED WITH questions about Moats' beliefs concerning student and administrative policy at the college.

Moats began his reply with a thank-you. "I appreciate your comments, Mr. James Hamill, especially since you currently are a member of the junior college board."

It was then that Palatine residents responded with a ringing round of applause. Hamill, of Palatine, was re-elected to a three-year term on the Harper board last April.

Other questions directed at the young candidate centered on changes he would try to bring in policy and activities at Harper.

Asked what existing policies he would like to see changed, Moats said reasons should be given when the board decides to dismiss a teacher.

In addition, he said students should be given some voice in hiring teachers, but not necessarily be given a vote in the matter.

HE WAS ASKED IF tax money currently is being used effectively by the college board.

"From my limited knowledge at the present time, I think it is, but the board might have gone overboard in the field of public relations, recently spending $55,000 in that area," he said.

When the formal discussion period for all candidates was completed, Moats was among the most popular office-seekers in terms of questions from individuals who wanted to know more about his candidacy.

The two incumbents, who were not present Monday night, also seeking voter approval in April 12's college board election are Richard Johnson and John Kuranz.

Court Annex Fight

Village attorneys for Mount Prospect and Des Plaines will appear in circuit court this morning to settle an annexation dispute on a six-acre tract of land owned by Kenroy Builders.

The vacant property, formerly a mushroom farm, is located south of Dempster Street and west of Route 83 in unincorporated Cook County. The land is presently zoned by the county for single family residences.

Des Plaines filed the suit challenging Mount Prospect's right to annex the land. Des Plaines annexed the six-acre parcel as part of a package plan including the annexation of other properties in the area on April 15, 1968.

Mount Prospect then annexed the Kenroy land on March 4, 1969, on the basis that the Des Plaines petition for annexation was improper and inadequate.

KENROY BUILDERS also owns property north of Dempster Street within the Mount Prospect village limits. Kenroy plans to develop this land in accordance with the village's recently approved planned unit development ordinance for multiple-family dwellings.

The six-acre tract involved in the annexation dispute is contingent to the Kenroy property in Mount Prospect. The builders have already indicated to Des Plaines that they want all of their property within the limits of one municipality, rather than dividing the land developments between Des Plaines and Mount Prospect.

The case will be heard before Judge Edward Healy, of Cook County Circuit Court, at 10 a.m. at the Chicago Civic Center.

Puppy Palace is coming to Chicago. We're coming to Arlington Heights. We're coming on April 5.

We're coming with a whole new kind of store.

Our only business is puppies. Purebred puppies at that.

Our kennels are different. (They keep our puppies healthier.)

Our people are different. (They took courses at a special "Puppy School.")

Even our policies are different. (We might refuse to make a sale.)

Read why.

Probably the first difference you'll notice will be in our kennels.

Their special design makes them stay spotlessly clean—even when the puppy inside acts like a puppy. So the puppy stays cleaner too. And healthier. But that's only the beginning.

43 different breeds

You'll notice an enormous variety of puppies. We'll normally be able to sell you any of 43 different breeds. All of them purebred. If any particular breed is not in stock at the moment, we can still get one for you fast. But fast.

And here's the biggest difference between Puppy Palace and pet stores. You can't simply point to any puppy in the store and expect us to ring up the register as if we were selling a can of soup.

When you buy a puppy, you're buying a new member of your family. So we think you should choose him very, very carefully. That's why we insist on this policy:

"We'll sell you the right puppy—or no puppy at all"

We won't sell a puppy who sheds easily to a family with lots of nubby upholstery.

We won't sell an active, outdoor breed to families who live in small apartments. (Although we might make an exception if your apartment is close to a park.)

We won't sell a fragile puppy to a family with lots of hard-playing young children. Or a noisy breed to families with grouchy neighbors.

We won't let you make a mistake

By now you probably get the idea. It makes good business sense to sell you a puppy you'll be happy with. And it's bad business to ring up a sale if you'll hate us three days later.

So our trained puppy experts will ask some questions about your kids, your home, even your furniture. Then we'll help you pick the right puppy for your family. That's why we handle so many breeds in the first place.

7-day home trial and 2 years to pay

Just to make sure you have the right puppy, we'll let you try him at home for seven days. You can find out whether he really fits in with your family. If your puppy isn't perfect for you, bring him back and we'll exchange him for a puppy of equal value. And to make your new puppy easier on your pocketbook, we'll let you take up to two years to pay on approved credit cards.

We'll live 10 years or we'll help pay

Every puppy we sell has undergone an extensive health program. (Those spotless cages are part of it. So is each puppy's vitamin-enriched diet.)

Every puppy has his puppy shots. And we're so confident of our puppies that we make this promise:

Any puppy you buy from us will live at least 10 years—or we'll contribute to the cost of replacing him with a new puppy from our store.

A department store for dogs

We said our only business is puppies and we mean it. But puppies need a lot of help—now, and when they grow up. So Puppy Palace is also a complete department store for dogs.

We can supply you with our own vitamin formula to help keep your pet healthy. Or our own special shampoo that won't sting his eyes. Or our own special dry bath for cold weather. Or a leash. Or a collar. Or a chew toy. Or a puppy sweater.

Come in to our new Puppy Palace on Grand Opening Day. Bring the kids. They'll love it. And if you remember only one thing about us, remember this: We'll sell you the right puppy—or no puppy at all. But with so many different breeds to choose from, the right puppy won't be very hard to find.

"We'll sell you the right puppy—or no puppy at all."

Northpoint Shopping Center, Arlington Heights, Ill. Doors open 10:30 a.m., Saturday, April 5.

Open Mondays through Fridays 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. — Saturdays 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. — Sundays 11:00 a.m. to 5 p.m. Phone: (312) 255-0430.

The Way We See It

Pass Moratorium

No criminal has been legally put to death in Illinois since Aug. 24, 1962.

On that date, James Dukes — convicted of the slaying of a Chicago policeman — was executed in the electric chair of Cook County Jail.

No criminal has been legally put to death in the United States since June 2, 1967.

On that date, Louis Monge — sentenced for the murder of his wife and three of his 10 children — died in the gas chamber in Colorado.

Those cases represent one of the greatest incongruities in the application of capital punishment in the United States.

Though the death penalty remains a part of the criminal statutes in 37 of the 50 states, it hasn't been invoked nationally in almost two years, and in Illinois for more than six years.

We rarely use it, despite the high incidence of so-called "capital" crimes, and yet we keep it on the books, in some cases with passionate indignation over the suggestion that it be abolished.

The question that nags is this: Why?

The arguments for the death penalty are becoming increasingly weak and diluted with time. The biggest of them — that it is some kind of deterrent to heinous crime — is negated by the very disuse of the penalty.

If we distill all the arguments into one, the closest we come to a justification for legally killing off our criminals is that it leaves us with a form of vengeance, the ultimate punishment when we are so offended and enraged by a crime that we can strike the offender dead. After, of course, possible years of expense, litigation, delays and re-prives until we have removed all the barriers to finally dropping the axe.

That leaves us harboring little more than a form of barbarism in our society, the classic "eye-for-an-eye" philosophy, and the contradiction of justifying homicide for the state while condemning it for the citizens.

To claim that the death penalty might still have some redeeming value as a deterrent is less and less supported by statistics. The most meaningful comparison is between Michigan — which has abandoned the penalty — and Illinois.

There are two states with similar population and similar urban centers scattered throughout their geography, including — in Detroit and Chicago — two major cities with almost identical contours and problems. And yet both Detroit and Michigan have lower murder and manslaughter rates than Chicago and Illinois. Killing the offender simply does not put an end to killing.

It would indicate that there is something more humane afoot in Michigan in dealing with crime and the treatment of criminals.

The enlightened states are the 13 that have written off the death penalty, including Illinois' Midwest neighbors of Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.

Illinois again has the chance to join this enlightened minority. The General Assembly — as it did two years ago — is now considering a bill to impose a six-year moratorium on use of the death penalty in the state.

It has already passed the House Judiciary Committee, and we strongly urge that it be approved by the full legislature and Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

We would go further, and urge the complete abolition of the death penalty in this state. But the moratorium — which already has existed unofficially since 1962 — is the beginning, and can be the wedge to rid Illinois of a cruel and pointless punishment it doesn't need.

Critic's Corner

Culinary Devilment Turns Him Off

by JIM HARVEY

Despite living what I consider a good life, the gods of food seem to be against me.

This comes to mind following a harrowing experience I had recently after dashing home to get a hot lunch.

There was my beautiful wife stirring contentedly over a pan of piping hot chicken noodle soup.

ABOUT THE TIME the pleasant aroma sifted into the living room, and I began to lick my chops, I heard a blood curdling scream from the kitchen.

I dashed to the rescue, nearly stumbling over my 15-month-old daughter, to find my wife peeking into the soup pan. There, floating above the noodles, were tiny striped creatures about a quarter-inch long.

They came in a box, not canned, type of noodle soup which made no mention of containing strange creatures.

This soup box had not previously been opened, so how did they get in the box? I'm sure Mrs. whatever her name is didn't put them there purposely, and the box was only in our cabinet a couple of weeks. Very strange indeed.

THIS ISN'T THE only problem I've had with foods in recent months. While eating a sweet roll purchased from a well known Chicago bakery, I discovered a sliver of metal which in no way added to its texture or flavor. I sent a letter to the baker, enclosing the object, but never received a reply. I wonder how many other complaints of this type the bakery receives?

A few other, smaller complaints of food processing which irritate me are:

- Seeds in apple pie.
- Pits in so-called pitless cherries (I'm a Manhattan lover).
- Egg shells in meringue or lemon pie.
- Bones in boneless fish.

The gods of food may be against me, but the next time you make soup that comes in a box, check to make sure the chicken noodles aren't bugging you.

Washington Window

Evaluating Assassination Threats

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI) Backstairs at the White House

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Secret Service may have moved by now into an interesting situation involving something of a laboratory case—how does the government evaluate an assassination threat?

Several weekends ago, a rather prominent Washington figure was in a fashionable lounge parlor and restaurant with several friends. Near them was a young white man who was described later as a foreign student. He apparently was with some people, too.

In any case, the prominent Washingtonian heard the foreign-sounding young man say that for a variety of reasons, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., would "have to be killed."

The Washingtonian, a man who knows the Kennedy family well and who suffered with them through two other assassinations, turned quickly on the foreigner and inquired whether he had understood him correctly.

The younger man repeated what he had said—that Kennedy would "have to be killed."

Whereupon, the man hauled off and punched the young foreigner in the face, knocking him to the floor.

What happened after that is not entirely clear, but the astounded Washington figure got the name and local address of the man whom he slugged.

There was no police action at the time, but the man who threw the punch at the loudmouth had every intention of reporting the incident to either the FBI or the Secret Service the next morning.

He changed his mind, however, after several days of thinking about the ugly matter. He did not want to be responsible for punishment of a young man who may have been doing nothing more than expressing crudely his thoughts on Kennedy policies.

The story got around and the prominent figure was approached by a concerned friend who urged him to report the case at once. There was one drawback. He had thrown away the name and address.

It does raise some interesting questions, however. Would Sen. Robert F. Kennedy be alive today if someone had overheard Sirhan Sirhan express his intense feelings before he shot Kennedy—and reported it to police? Also, persons who make wisecracks about hijacking passenger aircraft are snatched up quickly by police if authorities hear about it. Should there be less reaction to threats, however irresponsible, against the life of a public figure, particularly one who has lost two brothers in the same awful way?

Six Years' Solitary Confinement

In the City

Cops Are 'Discussable'

BY ED MURNANE

A fundamental political question has been posed in the current Rolling Meadows city election: What is fair game and what is not fair game?

The issue was forced two weeks ago when a candidate for alderman, William Miseska, said he felt the local police department may need "some shaking up."

MISESKA ALSO SAID he thought a committee should be appointed to study the turnover rate in the department.

Neither point was offered by the candidate until he was questioned about the police department, so whether or not he intended to make the police department an issue in the election may never be known. Miseska claims his statements were taken out of context and that the "shaking up" did not sound the way he meant it.

The fact is, however, that the police department is a matter of discussion during the campaign.

ALMOST AS SOON as Miseska uttered his now famous words, praise for the city's police department began to pour out from all sides.

What's wrong with that?

Nothing, absolutely nothing. In fact, there would be something wrong if city officials and the townspeople did not defend their boys in blue.

There has never been any reason whatsoever to question the Rolling Meadows police department, and the city officials can take pride in having a force as good if not better than any around.

AS FAR AS TURNOVER is concerned, it's a universal problem among police departments. Until our cities and villages can start paying police what they're really worth, they're going to be forced to seek other, more lucrative jobs.

But that's not a problem in Rolling Meadows, and it's certainly not the fault of the city. The fault lies with the system, as vague a word as that is.

What disturbs me is not what's right or wrong with the Rolling Meadows police department. My own feelings are that there's a lot right with it, and little wrong. If there's more wrong, it hasn't been seen yet, and it hasn't affected the department in its responsibilities.

Eye on Arlington

Ssh! The Board's in Session

by SANDRA COMSTOCK

I just talked with a woman who works for the Arlington Heights Park District. She was enthusiastic, bubbling and energetic. Too bad she's not on the park board.

Park board members don't exactly bubble. They don't even simmer or steam. They just sort of sit there and ooze.

If you attend a park board meeting, you enjoy the casualness with which business is conducted. Members will get up during the meeting to get a cup of coffee and ask others if they want one.

THERE IS nothing wrong with coffee at a board meeting. It relaxes the members and the audience alike. However, it is an indication of the entire attitude of the board.

Park board meetings are never secret. Signs are posted at Pioneer Park directing members of the public to where the meeting is being held. However, when they get there, it's hard to tell what's going on.

Usually there is no agenda available. You don't know what they are going to discuss or in what order.

Then they mumble. At a meeting last week concerning awarding of contracts, one member of the audience said he couldn't hear what was going on. He had sat through an hour and a half of meeting and couldn't tell what decision the board had made.

THE MAN WANTED to know if the board had eliminated the wading pool at Olympic Pool Park to cut down costs. A board member told him "Yes, we discussed that and decided to put it back in."

It wasn't the man's fault he hadn't heard the discussion. Board members sit around a table and talk to each other. Maybe they can hear each other, but it available, but how often do people take advantage of it? Why aren't they present while discussion is going on?

The board has consistently allowed people to address the board and listen to the speakers. In this area, they are to be highly commended. However, they will have to make themselves heard before people can express opinions. The audience has to be able to tell what they are talking about.

CANDIDATES FOR the board have charged it moved too slowly on letting contracts for parks approved in last summer's referendum. As John Edwards, incumbent candidate for the board, said, "We could have let contracts the day the referendum was passed, and those pools still wouldn't have been ready for this summer."

Apparently candidates were looking for something to pick on. Why not bring up the park issue? It had the potential of getting votes, but it was not a fair criticism. Looking at the contract awarding realistically, the board moved with reasonable haste.

Perhaps the board can be criticized on other points, but the letting of contracts is not one of them.

Board members could improve its public image by simply being more considerate of its audience. When one person attends a meeting, he talks to friends and neighbors. If his impression is one of lethargy and members talking to each other so that they cannot be heard, then this is what the people say.

ARLINGTON Heights' park board is doing a good job. However, how will we know about what they are doing unless they talk loud enough to be heard?

So speak up. I hope the new member or members elected Tuesday will help the board stop mumbling and start acting.

Juniors Hold Season Key: Sprehe

by PAUL LOGAN

REMEMBER THE thrills you got from watching high school and college players dunking a basketball?

If you do, cherish them for that's probably the last time you'll see it done on these levels.

The chances of ever eliminating the "no-dunk rule" are almost non-existent. At least that's the word from Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Association which is located in Chicago.

He was asked by Paddock Publications to comment on the recent statement made on nationwide television concerning the return of the stuff shot.

The remarks were made by Frank McGuire, head coach at the University of South Carolina, in a side court interview just before Lew Alcindor & Co. romped to their third straight N.C.A.A. title. McGuire said that in the fall of 1969 the rule would end and college boys would again be banging home those crowd-pleasing shots.

"Frank McGuire is not on the rules committee," Fagan said in a scolding tone. "It was unfortunate that this man went up and talked on television without any background at all."

McGuire's thoughts were pure conjecture, according to Fagan, as were the newspaper reports that followed which gave no credence to the rumor.

"There's always a chance," Fagan noted concerning the rule's abolishment. "However, the probability is quite remote."

And the more he discussed what many consider "the dull rule," the more crushing his words were to the ears of one who had gotten so much pleasure from witnessing the rousing shot.

"A nationwide questionnaire indicated that the elimination of the dunk shot has had even wider support than it has ever had," he continued.

And while he was of the mind to rap the fingers of outspoken coaches, the question was put to him concerning U.C.L.A. coach Johnny Wooden's comments as to the strange coincidence of this rule's adoption just as Alcindor was dominating the national scene.

Wooden was of the opinion that it was meant to stop big Lew from running up terrific point totals against the Bruins' opposition.

"It is unfortunate that any coach would think the rule was written for any person," Fagan lashed out. "Certainly Wooden spoke out of turn. . . he should have known better since he was once on the rules committee himself."

"The fact that many players are a lot taller and have more jumping ability did perhaps cause this rule to be changed, but not one man."

And the decision to stop the shot only came after long deliberation which started, according to Fagan, "probably about six years ago."

Besides the association that Fagan heads up, six other governing bodies are joined to form the rules committee: the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada, the N.C.A.A., the National Junior College Association, the Canadian Amateur Association, the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association and, surprisingly enough, the Y.M.C.A.

One of the reasons which many people consider the main cause for eliminating the dunk, according to Fagan, is the possible bending or breaking of the backboard or rim.

"Apparently many coaches don't understand the basis for the change," he pointed out. "First of all, the object of the game is to THROW the ball in the basket."

"Secondly, it is unfair to the defense to permit the offense to stick its hands up there (over the cone of the basket) while not allowing the defense to do the same."

"People who understand the rules realize that you just can't legislate against the defense."

Although the dunk shot did add the spectacular to the game, Fagan's reasons for eliminating it were logical.

But take heart dunker lovers, just about 100 short miles from here next fall will be Milwaukee's answer to the John Hancock Building — Big Lew himself.

While playing for the Bucks he will make up for all those dunks he couldn't perform the last few years. He could very well become the all-time stuffer in N.B.A. history.

CONGRATULATIONS TO all the athletes at Forest View High School! They have accomplished something no other Mid-Suburban League has ever done — they won the Milt Sprunger Sportsmanship Award.

The trophy's namesake was an assistant executive secretary of the Illinois High School Association for over 20 years. When he retired, the trophy came into being.

This award, which is sponsored by the Northern Officials Association, is given to one school out of nine conferences which displays the best sportsmanship throughout the season.

Forest View became one of the nine finalists by being voted the most sportsman-like by the rest of the league. Then each of the winners submitted an essay on why their school should be picked. Forest View junior Rusty Sinkler's effort was chosen the best.

Last Saturday, at the Brae Loch Country Club at Grayslake, the association held its annual banquet. On hand to accept the awards were Bill Beckman, athletic director at Forest View, and Bob Hoese, assistant principal.

Lake Park of the Tri-County Conference was the only other Paddock area team that has received this honor, this coming in 1967.

Previous winners were Grayslake (1968), Maine South (1966), Deerfield (1965) and West Leyden (1964).

Besides the MSL and the Tri-County, these were the other conferences that took part: North Suburban, Northwest Suburban, West Suburban, Central Suburban, Des Plaines Valley, Suburban Catholic and the Uptate Eight.

GOLFERS everywhere have lost some yesterday as one of their fellow one of their own. Those who love the game were a little more reflective than some yesterday as one of their fellow linksmen was laid to rest.

Dwight D. Eisenhower turned to golf to find a temporary release from the rigors of the presidency. He was The General of the fairways long before his friend — Arnold Palmer — was leading his famous charges.

Last summer, Paul Hahn — the master of the trick golf shot — came to the Paddock area to put on one of his unique exhibitions. Naturally, the question came up at a press conference as to which had been the most responsible for the tremendous popularity of golf — television or Arnie or both.

Since Hahn had been both a touring pro and a club pro, he was as qualified as anyone to comment on the question. He never hesitated in his answer:

"You've got to give old Ike the main credit for its success."

This famous general and beloved president has been given much praise and honor by many during these last few days of mourning, and rightly so.

But, for a man who has done so much to make golf what it is today, more than just plaques should be performed.

Hopefully, the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) will realize Ike's tremendous contribution to the game and name a tournament in his honor. In this writer's opinion, nothing would have satisfied Ike more.

He will be missed. . .

STANDING PROUD above the Forest View gymnasium is Bill Beckman, athletic director. And he has every reason to be proud. The Falcon athletic program was honored last Saturday night with the Milt Sprunger Sportsmanship Award—a trophy that goes to the school which demonstrates the best attitude on the field. Forest View, which was elected by the rest of the Mid-Suburban League, competed against eight other conferences. The award is sponsored by the Northern Officials Association.

FOREST VIEW SCHEDULE

Cardinell, Guy Ekblad and Bruce Kratky.

The remaining juniors on the team are:

These juniors know what it is to be a winning ball club. Last year they, as sophomores, took the runnerup spot in the MSL with a fine 8-5 record.

The Falcons open up the league race with Palatine on Wednesday, April 16. Sprehe concluded by saying this of the MSL struggle to come:

"I don't see any one team that should dominate."

St. Viator's Father Cahill

More Than 'Just An Ad'

by ED MURNANE

When Tim Walinski began his high school baseball career several years ago, he followed the pattern that most high school athletes follow: meet the coach, meet the athletic director, get to know both of them better than the other teachers at the school and play as well as possible for them.

Beyond those four high school years, the coach and athletic director may mean very little. They can be a help toward getting into that one certain college and they can be a lot of fun on alumni nights when old times are remembered, but the high school coach, and especially the athletic director, usually are out of the picture after that diploma is presented.

Except in the case of Tim Walinski.

Several years ago, Walinski was married.

THE CLERGYMAN who asked Tim and his bride if both of them would do this, that, every other thing and also say "I do" was the same fellow Tim got to know pretty well during his years at St. Viator High School.

The Rev. Patrick Cahill, athletic director at St. Viator for the past seven years, is much more than "just an AD" to his athletes.

Father Cahill is an athletic director, yes. But he is also priest, confessor, guidance counselor and just plain friend to the boys who attend St. Viator.

To the athletes, he may be chauffeur, trainer, assistant coach and general all-around critic.

BUT TO ALL the students, athlete or not, Father Cahill is "probably one of the neatest guys here. He's one of a million." He may not be one of a million, as one of his students said, but Father Cahill is in a pretty small minority.

When he received his master's degree in physical education from Eastern Illinois University, he became one of only two Roman Catholic priests in the nation to hold such a degree.

Right now, he is one of a dwindling breed of priest-athletic directors at Catholic high schools.

IN THE NINE team Chicagoand Prep League, of which St. Viator is a member, only three schools have religious order people as athletic directors. The others have hired laymen to direct their programs.

"It's a shame, but the Catholic colleges and seminaries neglect physical education," Father Cahill said.

But the neglect of physical education training didn't stop Father Cahill.

HE WENT TO one of the most respected high schools in the Chicago Catholic League — Fenwick of Oak Park — and played varsity football there.

He didn't have any formal physical education training at St. Ambrose College in Iowa, but as a young Viatorian brother at Cathedral High School in Springfield, Ill., Father Cahill began his coaching career.

"I coached football, baseball and basketball on a frosh-soph level at Cathedral (now Springfield Griffin)," Father Cahill explained.

"I had always loved athletics and the coaching was such a great experience that I started working toward a masters in physical education at Eastern Illinois."

AFTER RECEIVING the masters, and after his ordination as a priest, Father Cahill was assigned to St. Viator.

Because of his experience in physical education and coaching, he was appointed athletic director.

He also teaches two religion classes a day — to juniors — but his main role is athletic director and, as he admits, he loves it.

HE THINKS IT is probably easier for him, as a priest, to work with students than it would be for a layman.

"There's automatically a certain amount of respect which kids have for a priest," he said, "and the shared interest in athletics helps to create a pretty strong bond."

Also, because of other "jobs" Father Cahill performs that other athletic directors do not, he feels he is drawn even closer to the students and student-athletes.

"I DRIVE THE bus to games and I'm a part-time trainer, as well as doing some other things that athletic directors don't usually do."

As a priest, Father Cahill must serve as a spiritual counselor and a guidance counselor.

"My office is always open to the kids," he said. "They feel very free to come in to see me and talk. This is probably the most important thing about the job — just listening to them," he said.

"THERE'S A GREAT deal of satisfaction — like Walinski's wedding — that I can get that other athletic directors cannot have."

Father Cahill sees the athletic program at St. Viator as a tool to "help make better men out of these boys."

"I think they can learn so many important things, like humility, honesty, respect for themselves and others, and the ability to work with others. They also learn both winning and losing, and that's what they need because that's what life is."

Would he ever like to go back to coaching?

"I REALLY enjoyed it, but when I think of the pressures of varsity sports, I don't get so eager."

But eager or not, Father Cahill is always right there, the guy who drives the bus, diagnoses a muscle strain or two or just listens to a doubtful teenager who wants to talk.

His goal is "to make them better men."

Rifles Move to Mundelein

The Lake County Rifles of the Central States Professional Football League announced that they will be moving their home grounds from Weiss Field in Waukegan to the Carmel High School Field in Mundelein.

Rifle vice-president Angelo Dabiero made the announcement at a press conference in the Waukegan Inn.

"We are indebted to Waukegan and Waukegan High School," Dabiero said, "but I feel this is a necessary move."

Dabiero feels that Mundelein is more centrally located and that the Carmel field will have better lighting and parking facilities. At the present time the seating capacity at Carmel is only 1,500 and there are no lights at the field. But the Rifles plan to remedy this.

"We plan to put in 2,000 permanent bleacher seats and ad-lighting facilities to the field," Dabiero said, "at no cost to Carmel High School."

Dabiero was once the athletic director at Carmel.

Rifle head coach Gene "Chick" Cichowski said of the move, "This just has to help our ball club. This past year we had to practice at Mundelein High School and then at Libertyville in a park. At Libertyville there were no showers so the players had to come dressed and leave sweaty. At Carmel though we'll have all the playing and dressing facilities."

Herb Velsor, the commissioner of the Central States Football League, said that the league was continuing to improve.

A SMILE AND an open door — they both greet every St. Viator student who wants to talk to Father Patrick Cahill, athletic director at the school in Arlington Heights. Father Cahill is a member of a shrinking minority of priest-athletic directors at Catholic high schools.

The 'Galloping Gourmet' Is His Own Spice

Today is Thursday, April 3, the 83rd day of 1969 with 272 to follow

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn

On this day in history

In 1869 the Pony Express postal service began

In 1865 the Union Army occupied Richmond, Va., former capital of the Confederacy

In 1882 Jesse James was shot and killed while hanging a picture at his home in St. Joseph, Mo.

In 1962 the United States government ordered New Orleans to integrate the first six grades of public schools.

A thought for the day: Vannevar Bush said, "The scene changes but the aspirations of men of good will persist."

parsley right, it might have been the world's foremost hotelier by now.

But he was, and he doesn't, much, and he just wouldn't. So he was tossed out of a few of England's post-war cooking schools—in one case, after only nine days.

Young Kerr (pronounced Care) was pretty broken up. "As a teenager, I wanted to wear striped pants and a cutaway coat with a carnation in my buttonhole and be terribly smooth with everybody," he said.

Now 35, six-foot-four and a trim 184 pounds thanks to a little dieting, the drop-out is terribly smooth and sometimes very funny as the star of the hottest new kitchen program on television.

Well, "The Galloping Gourmet" is supposed to be a cook show but women—and a lot of men who won't admit it—from New York to Hong Kong tune in just to watch the handsome London-born Scot "slosh up" his fanciful cuisine.

"Gourmet" is seen in 10 American cities, including Los Angeles and San Francisco where it will be going prime time one night a week. It also is seen in Singapore, throughout Canada, Australia and New Zealand, and British television is bidding.

Kerr has become an enormous success despite critics—and he has lots of them—who say the dark blond man with the big smile is a fair entertainer but no cook.

Thumbs hooked in the pockets of a leather vest and his movie star chin sunk in the folds of a turtleneck, the TV gastronut dismissed the knockers as "status seekers" as he lounged with a UPI reporter in the sunroom of his home in the diplomatic quarter of Ottawa's smart Rockcliffe Village.

"This is what is wrong with the food business. This status. I have nothing but good relationships with professionals and very bad relationships with amateur food writers. I put it down to some feeling that they are insecure in what they are doing."

"I'm not a critic of anybody. I'm not going to waste my time," Kerr said. "But the public, I think, must get tired of the endless bitchiness in this business."

"I was born in the hotel business. I literally played in the kitchens of the first-class hotels in London where my parents worked. I got interested in food when I was 15."

So when he got to chef's school, young Kerr felt "I knew it all... I used to have rows and rows with the instructors." One such concerned that bechamel sauce, which Kerr still scorns as "nothing more than a flour and milk and butter slosh-up seasoned with mace and other junk."

He still has no use for schools. "I think Craig Claiborne (food critic for the New York Times) spent a year at the Ecole d'Hotelier in Lucerne. Well, good on him, that he had the patience. Or perhaps he knew nothing about food before he went. In which case that's fine...because you sit there and say 'Yes sir, no sir, three bags full, sir' and just accept the whole thing."

"But I was brought up in it and therefore I questioned everything and I still do," Kerr said.

The unorthodox chef, when he's not galloping around the globe or taping shows in Ottawa, lives most of the time in Australia where he has built a two-story "test kitchen" in which he practices his recipes.

Kerr's rebelliousness got him into trouble in the British army, which he joined as a chef instructor after he was thrown out of the cooking schools.

"Here was I, supposed to explain to people who knew nothing about it, the difference between brunoise and paysanne and julienne—which are relatively complicated garnishes for special sauces—when what they needed was to know how to make a bloody good brown stew."

"I became a whiz," Kerr remembers, "As a weapons drill instructor."

Out of the army and married to childhood sweetheart Treena Van Doorne—then a professional actress and now Kerr's 33-year-old producer—the couple went into partnership with Kerr's parents running a 15th century coaching inn that was headed for bankruptcy.

When it folded, the Kerrs were left with a huge debt and no jobs. "So I went to work as a waiter and I'm a pretty good waiter, and Treena went to work as a cocktail barmaid and she's a damn good cocktail barmaid."

Their tips paid off the debt and "we began the status rise up." The only problem was, every notch up the ladder of success in the hotel business meant fewer and fewer tips and more and more work.

Now just about as busy as he was then, Kerr says his life is "never a bore. But there are times you just wish you could be with your family."

Tessa is in an English private school, Andrew, 9, is enrolled in a New Zealand school and three-year old Karina is being looked after in Australia.

At 23, Kerr was manager of London's Royal Ascot Hotel but the work load was getting him down. "We decided to get the hell out of it."

In New Zealand, where he arrived broke, Kerr got a job as chief catering officer for the air force. His television career began when he was invited to put on a live cooking demonstration.

After nine years of "absolutely terrifying restrictions" and a lot of coaching from Treena, Kerr has no apologies for his unconventional cooking techniques or the fact that his show is just about pure entertainment. "That's what television is all about," he says.

"Hello Everybody," he yells, leaping on to his kitchen stage at the CJOH-TV studios in Ottawa in a typical blastoff to one of his half-hour romps through the world of haute cuisine.

"Nice little wine, that," he roars, indicating the dainty glass in his manicured hand. The cameras dolly in for a closeup as Kerr, often in a turtleneck and a mod jacket, smacks his lips loudly for a full 10 seconds.

"At heart what I believe in is hospitality," the gourmet explains. "I'm not here to wave banners. I'm not here to teach anybody how to cook. I'm here to say 'Here I am. Look at me. I am doing my thing, which is cooking and if you like watching me doing my thing, then great.'"

Very quickly, Kerr adds: "I'm a very serious food person. I have a larger audience for food than any other person in the world...more people get to hear what I have to say about food than anybody else...so I take that responsibility seriously."

Most of his dishes have been gleaned from Kerr's travels around the world. He says few chefs can resist the chance to appear on camera and readily reveal secrets no one else can get at.

"The first programs were funny," Kerr said. "But it wasn't intentional. It was out of sheer bloody petrified nerves. Something catastrophic would happen and I would talk my way out of it."

He was so anxious to make his show professional that Kerr hired a director. Once, "He was trying to make Graham learn things," Treena exploded indignantly. "Graham is a marvelous showman but you give him five lines to learn and he's useless."

"I'm winging it all the way," Kerr resumed, "and sometimes it's like skating on thin ice."

He was referring to shows like the one recently built around a prawn dish which turned out pretty bad because, he says, of a low-quality wine.

"I got a forkful of this stuff into my face," Kerr said with a rueful smile. "And I've never tasted anything more unpleasant in my life. It was a real disaster. I managed to swallow it and then I told the people, at great length, how revolting the mess was."

Besides writing prize-winning cookbooks—he won the Internationale Kochkunst Ausstellung Prize last year, awarded by the Gastronomische Akademie Deutschlands—and traveling all over the world, Kerr is working on a diet plan.

Cooking school dropout, washout as a British Army chef, down-and-outer during much of his young life, Kerr is now on his way to becoming a happy multi-millionaire.

And in the process, "I'm having just a tremendous time," he said.

Tales

By Martin Dorn

"And it rained for forty days and forty nights." Poor old Noah never knew what hit him.

The rain wouldn't have been so bad if he'd had a pair of HUSH PUPPIES® casuals to wear. They have lifetime water repellency.

Noah probably never heard of Breathin' Brushed Pigskin®, but he would have appreciated HUSH PUPPIES® anyway. Those endless walks around the boat looking for land would have been much more comfortable. With HUSH PUPPIES® there wouldn't have been a bark on the ark.

Noah also would have liked how HUSH PUPPIES® keep their smart look. The captain of a vessel should always look dignified and well dressed.

Unfortunately, Noah was 4,000 years too early for HUSH PUPPIES® casuals. Maybe it's just as well. The pigs on the boat probably would have felt a little uneasy.

Nancy Ruth Hey

Susan Nau

Miss Nancy Ruth Hey's engagement to Bruce Wenter McIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McIntosh II, 173 Inverway, Palatine, is announced by her parents, the Robert C. Hey's of 441 S. Highland, Arlington Heights.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 29.

Miss Hey is a graduate of Arlington High School and Evanston Hospital School of Nursing. She is on the staff of the Campus Crusade for Christ in Minneapolis. Her fiancé, a graduate of Palatine High School and Northwestern University, is also with the Campus Crusade for Christ but in San Diego, Calif. No photo.

Former Mount Prospect residents, the junior John L. Nau, now of Armonk, N. Y., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Susan Morse Nau, to William George Roop, son of the William George Roops of Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. Nau are also former residents of Atlanta.

Miss Nau attends Auburn University in Auburn, Ala., where she is completing her sophomore year in the School of Education. Mr. Roop is a sophomore attending DeKalb College in Atlanta. No wedding date has been set.

'Saving Our Lakes' Is AAUW's April Topic

Priscilla Fenton

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fenton of Northfield are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Priscilla Beth, to James Siewek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Siewek of Arlington Heights. The couple will wed on June 21.

Miss Fenton, who is now employed by a Glenview advertising firm, studied at the University of Arizona, and the Ray Vogue School and American Academy of Art in Chicago. Mr. Siewek, a graduate of Arlington High School, is majoring in industrial art at the Ray Vogue School.

Dr. Mary A. McWhinnie, the first American woman scientist to participate in the U. S. Antarctic Research Program in research in the metabolism of crustaceans, will address the Northwest Suburban Branch of the American Association of University Women Thursday, April 10.

She will be speaking on "Can We Save Our Lakes?" at the 8 p.m. meeting to be held in the Oehler's Community Room, Lee and Perry St., Des Plaines. Her address will concern water pollution and returning lakes to their natural state.

DR. McWHINNIE, chairman of DePaul University's Department of Biological Sciences, is a member of the scientific team sponsored by the Illinois Institute of Technology to study physics, chemistry and biology of the Great Lakes. More than 20 of her articles have been published in scientific journals and she has presented research papers at the annual meeting of the American Society of Zoologists, Division of Comparative Physiology and Division of Comparative Endocrinology.

She became chairman of the Department of Biological Sciences at DePaul in 1966.

Open Units Are Handy

Built-ins are the space-saving way to house music equipment. But instead of hiding it behind cabinet drawers, why not set the individual pieces in drawers which are side-mounted on full-extension glides?

Both turntable and tape deck will be easy to reach for use, repair and replacement.

The tuner also can be housed in a drawer with controls mounted in the drawer front.

Four Topics Are Open to AAUW

At the Thursday, April 10, meeting of the Arlington Heights Branch of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. Robert Long, program chairman, will present the four topics selected by AAUW nationally for study by the Association branches during the next biennium.

These topics evolve from suggestions and studies by local branches on issues of concern that are in the forefront of public conscience or are of intellectual interest to AAUW members. From these the Branch will choose one or two for study and action.

Topics under consideration are: American Foreign Policy — Dilemmas and Realities of Power; The Academic Community — New Look on Campus; This Beleaguered Earth — Can Man Survive?

The Human Use of Urban Space. ASSISTING Mrs. Long will be area representatives in charge of topics of continuing concern to the branch: Mrs. Robert Born, cultural interests; Mrs. Kenneth Brown, community problems; Mrs. William Joy, world problems; Mrs. Robert Staley, education.

The program that evening will be presented by the "Politics of Public Education" study group and will be a press conference format with a panel of "experts" being questioned by representatives of John Q. Public.

AAUW meets at Pioneer Park Field House, 500 S. Fernandez. The coffee hour is at 7:45 p.m., with the program at 8:30 p.m.

New president of the Branch is Mrs. A. Rabchuk, and new secretary will be Mrs. D. Stockham, both of Arlington Heights.

Women in Action

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Among things to cheer about in the world of women—all subject to copying in your town:

—A contemporary version of the Golden Rule's surfacing in an organization simply dubbed Fish. Women participating in this homefront project volunteer to help when called by a neighbor who needs emergency cooking, driving, babysitting or whatnot. In return, the helper gets the right to have her SOS or whatever answered when it's sounded.

—A group of wives and mothers climbing the walls talked their husbands into letting them go off on a cruise—sans hubby or children. They have a week of fun while husband spends a week of his vacation time filling in the little woman's shoes.

—BETTING ON mompower being more powerful than a policeman's badge, authorities in an Eastern Seaboard town okayed a plan whereby mothers ride in police cars after school. The problem to be controlled: roving bands of children who descend on other children on the way home from school. Mompower, those involved figure, carries a lot of the weight—especially when it's via flat of the hand applied to seat of pants.

—A woman in her golden years, sick for more than a week, worried because her phone didn't ring once during the shut-in spell. Yes. Things like that happen—in urban areas especially. When she recovered she started an answering service in reverse. She and the women who work with her now call persons who live alone—on a regular basis. Just a friendly call to check in, seeing that all's well.

YOUNG-at-heart women in their sixties were curious about some of those movies with outrageously sexy come-on ads. Afraid to go alone, they banded together. Now once a week they meet and go in a group, laughing all the way. No one knows how much popcorn they consume at the matinees.

—In a move to head off student unrest, a school system on the East Coast okayed slacks for coeds. After the authorization went into effect, big surprise. Most of the girls opted for skirts.

The only negative observation I've had on the women's world recently: That magazine that says "never underestimate the power of a woman"—Ladies Home Journal—has males in the top three editorial spots.

Cancerphobia Is Common To Skin Problem Sufferers

Most people have "cancerphobia" in regard to skin problems. They're afraid to have a growth, mole or blemish checked for fear it may be cancerous.

Fortunately their fear is usually groundless, for even if their blemish is cancerous, it's probably 90 per cent curable, says the Illinois Medical Society. What's more, it's easier to cure than other types of cancer, according to the doctors' organization.

Why? Because there's the great advantage that it can be easily seen and diagnosed before the condition has progressed. And, since most cancers of the skin do not spread through the blood stream to other organs, they're also easier to treat. Some types can be destroyed with an electric needle, then curetted (scraped off) or cut out surgically. Others are destroyed with x-ray or radium.

ALTHOUGH anyone may contract skin cancer, its most frequent victims are people who are exposed to the outdoors, such as farmers, seamen and policemen. People who are constantly exposed to tars in their occupations — roofers, tar distillers, etc. — are also more vulnerable.

Of course, the earlier skin cancer is detected, the easier it is to cure. So heed these signs of possible skin cancer:

Any mole that bleeds, changes color, looks irritated or increases in size. Certain types of moles, especially the dark ones, may turn into cancer too.

Wartlike growths. Usually caused by natural aging of the skin, over exposure to sunlight or x-ray, or some types of internal medication, they frequently appear on the lips, hands, face and sometimes on the palms and soles of the feet.

ANY SORE, pimple or other blemish that doesn't heal or increases in size. White spots that occur on the lips or in the mouth. These spots are often caused by heavy smoking, poorly-fitted dentures or jagged teeth.

Any bump or lump on the skin that increases in size. Fortunately this condition is not necessarily cancerous. But only a physician can determine if it's a benign cyst or other non-cancerous condition.

Add Herbs to Roast Lamb

The family expects festive food for Easter, and a really festive dish for the occasion is Herbed Roast Lamb. Platter mates can be baked potatoes and hot buttered cherry tomatoes.

Order the lamb ahead and have it boned and rolled (or do it yourself). It should weigh about five pounds after boning.

When ready to cook, untie roast and spread out flat. Sprinkle with a mixture of garlic salt, 1/4 teaspoon seasoned pepper, 1/4 teaspoon crumbled leaf basil, 1/4 teaspoon crumbled leaf rosemary, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Roll meat and tie tightly so it keeps shape. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan and roast in slow oven (325 degrees) for 1 1/2 hours.

POUR 1 1/2 CUPS of dry wine over meat. Continue roasting, spooning wine over roast every 20 minutes for 1 1/2 hours longer or until meat thermometer registers

Set Card Party Date

A card party is included in the April activities of St. Peter Lutheran Church Dorcas Aid Society, Arlington Heights. The event will take place Thursday, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria, 111 W. Olive St.

Tickets are available from Mrs. Ralph Meyer at 253-4356 and will be sold at the door.

Perfect Topper for Easter Ham

With ham available in so many easy-to-prepare ways, it's really no effort at all to treat the family to a traditional Easter dinner. To top ham slices, "Easter Fruit Sauce" will add a particularly sparkling, spicy touch that will rave from everyone. Accompaniments can be a fresh spring vegetable and perhaps some of the pretty, small, red skinned new potatoes. Finish off with a lavish Easter cake or pudding.

Devon Fruit Sauce

- 1 can (1 lb. 1 oz.) fruit cocktail
- 1 medium size orange
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup currant jelly
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1/3 cup orange juice

Drain fruit cocktail, saving syrup. Grate 1 teaspoon rind from orange and squeeze juice. Combine 1/2 cup fruit cocktail syrup with cornstarch, mustard and salt and stir until smooth. Add jelly, orange rind and juice, and cook, stirring until clear and thickened. Add drained fruit cocktail and heat thoroughly. Serve hot, with ham.

Makes about 2-2 1/2 cups sauce.

Precautionary Care Slows Stainless Wear

You can prolong the life of your stainless steel cookware by taking just a few simple precautions. Use medium to low heat for top-of-range use. This will do a satisfactory job of cooking.

To preheat for frying, use medium heat for two to three minutes. Do not use high heat when cooking and do not preheat any longer than necessary. Overheating and too-high heat may result in discoloration.

Also never pour cold water into a hot utensil and avoid cutting food in pans with sharp-edged utensils. These suggestions will save needless wear and tear on your cookware and keep it looking lovely for years.

LARGE COPPER KETTLE used for canning at the turn of the century has been given to the Arlington Heights Historical Society by the Ginger Creek Quarters group. Virgil Horath, curator, accepted the antique from Mrs. Carol Carey, center, and Mrs. Raymond Carroll, committee members who located it in a nearby suburb.

A Book Worth Reading If You're Dining in Paris

James W. Ryan (UPI)

A Parisian's Guide to Paris by Henri Gault and Christian Millau translated by Patricia Allen Dreyfus (Random House $7.95). Three messages come through: distinctly in this amusing and well-informed guidebook.

First, the French do indeed have some favorite little restaurants, bistros, night clubs, hotels and shops largely unknown to tourists.

Second, the food, wine and ambience at eating establishments ranges from so-so to sublime.

Third—and most important, to the average tourist—few are cheap, even by U.S. dollar standards. But then, as the author writes, "Sublime food is never cheap."

Both authors are Paris newspapermen and magazine writers who cover gastronomy, night life and travel.

Here are some samples of their uncompromising and sometimes uncomplicated assessments:

Of Chez Castel-Club Princesse, a night-club popular with celebrities:

"Your titles, your bank account or the cut of your clothes have very little to do with whether you'll be made a party to this essential point. They might keep Nelson Rockefeller out and let his butler in."

Everything's authentic at Chez Castel—both the decor and the price gouging. The whole thing might have stepped right out of the prop room at the studio where Max Ophüls made La Ronde.

One last word: Don't bother going here if you don't know the so-called Tout-Paris. Even if by some miracle you manage to get in, you'll be unbelievably bored."

Of a Right Bank jazz club, the Blue

Note, which attracts the best modern-jazz musicians when they're in town. "Comfort is at a minimum. Don't sit on the chairs, and watch out for the spring in the banquettes." And be prepared to pay $3.60 each for drinks. You think that's high? Drinks are $4.40 each at the bar in the Crazy Horse Saloon, a strip joint, and $7.00 each in the main room. But the show gets raves from these often-harsh critics. "It's a masterpiece of intelligence, humor and sophistication... symbols of disembodied sensuality, bordering on abstract art."

Among restaurants, their favorites include some celebrated ones as well as tiny, little known establishments such as La Rose de France, which has only 10 tables, accepts no reservations and has a small but appetizing bill of fare and a terrace with a view. A meal costs $5 to $6 per person there; and Chez Lion, which serves "royal chow at cafeteria prices 10 francs—$2—for an enormous and always equally delicious meal."

The authors' suggestions about ordering meals should be required reading for anyone who ever eats in restaurants. They tell how to get the best for your money.

If you are offered game out of season, it will be imported, frozen and of abysmal quality. Since you can't possibly know the right season for everything, the simplest solution is to ask the waiter or owner whether or not something is a product of season (in season).

"Take your time reading the menu and ordering. If the waiter tries to rush you, call the owner, if necessary walk out. Waiters are there to serve you, not vice versa."

Mexico's Year of 'El Tapado' — Watch for the Winner

By TERRANCE W. MCGARRY
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — For five years out of every six, Mexican politics is like a brawl in a coal mine: those on the outside hear only stray echoes, and even those inside may not know for sure who is doing what and to whom.

This is the year the winner — "El Tapado," meaning the man in the hood — emerges from the darkness to be acclaimed the next President of the nation, although the election isn't until 1970.

The betting is beginning already, to the annoyance of the caretakers of the Mexican political system who staunchly insist there is no such thing as a "Tapado" — and no quarrels, no factions, no maneuvering.

The "official" picture of the political scene — as painted by the all-powerful Party of Revolutionary Institutions (PRI), which has ruled the country for over 40 years — is that all PRI politicians are brothers in the "revolution," cooperating in fraternal harmony for the good of the people.

All important PRI decisions are made its councils. It is against the code to draw political knives in public, and the infighting goes on behind a curtain of secrecy.

The presidential election for the next six-year term will not be held until July, 1970, but the PRI will hold its convention some time this fall and by convention time, or probably somewhat before, the identity of the next President will be clear. This is the "Tapado," the "hooded one" as Mexican political writers call him, who will be "unveiled" by the party.

The PRI nominee then will conduct a mostly ceremonial campaign, and he swept into office by the usual landslide — probably more than 90 per cent of the vote — that has installed every PRI candidate for the presidency since the party was formed in a theater in Queretaro in 1928.

Identity of the "Tapado" is already the major subject of speculation in Mexican newspapers and magazines. When it is revealed, the official announcement will probably come as an anti-climax.

In coming months, a few names will float to the surface in newspapers, perhaps identified as backed by "large groups of citizens." The list will probably change a bit, and then narrow down to a "the man." Only then his identity is known knowledge will political figures pubcly line up behind him.

Names currently bandied around as "pre-tapados" include the current secretary of the Interior, Luis Echevarria, Mexico City Mayor Alfonso Corona del Rosal, and Juan Gil Preciado, secretary of agriculture.

Both Echevarria and Corona del Rosal are handicapped because they were connected with the bloody suppression of the student revolt in the streets before the Olympic Games last fall.

Nomination of either one might send the students back to the barricades.

Corona del Rosal has the additional handicap of being an army general. Mexico, sensitive to the image of "Latin American military government," has not elected a general to the presidency since 1940.

Gil Preciado, a latecomer, has the advantage of not having made many enemies as secretary of agriculture. He enjoys a smiling "friend to the farmer" image that contrasts favorably with Echevarria's dour "top cop" image in the public mind.

Fidel Velazquez, who has headed the two million-member Mexican Labor Confederation for over 30 years, and who will have a big hand in the selection, probably spoke the truth when asked by a reporter recently, "Who is the tapado?"

"Nobody knows yet," he said.

But down there in the coal mine, you can bet the infighting is getting fierce.

Red Bread—Good Eating

MOSCOW (UPI)—If man could live by bread alone, the Russians would have no problems. Bakers here produce what some gourmets regard as the world's best bread.

It comes in startling variety. Moscow central bakeries feature around 130 kinds while it is claimed officially that more than 200 breads are baked across the nation.

Gastronomically speaking, bread has always been regarded by the government as the main consumer item. There is even a Ministry of Bread Production here.

A Soviet citizen, according to statistics, eats on the average more than a pound of bread each day and consumption of bread in rural areas is believed to be even higher.

Indeed, the Russian language reflects bread's paramount importance in the national diet by applying the term bread (khleb) to wheat, barley, corn, flour and several other cereals.

"We Russians, we can't live without bread. Not because we have no other food but because we love bread," said a shapely 26-year-old Moscow secretary who admits she watches her figure though refusing to cut down on bread.

Moscow's bakeries are doing little to discourage people from buying their products.

A visitor to a central bakery shop on Kalinin Street or a similar shop on Gorky Street faces an almost endless variety of bread in different shapes, sizes, black and white, with and without trimming, whole grain, half grain and other grinds.

Large forks are available for babushkas (grandmothers) who stick them into bread loaves to check freshness and consistency. A special stand features about 20 kinds of "dietetic" bread.

For centuries, the Russian folk tradition regarded bread as "sacred." To throw away a piece of bread was considered to be almost a religious sin.

In recent years, according to Soviet consumer experts, the national bread consumption has been on a slight decrease.

The government newspaper Izvestia recently complained that "The baking industry has suffered heavy losses because of the wide variety of bread—130 kinds: since many are not in demand but no one seems to be willing to consider these losses."

Since "millions of rubles worth of bread are wasted," Izvestia said, parents must educate their children to show "the necessary respect for bread."

We Are NOT Looking for a GRUMPY COMPOSITOR

Instead, we have need for a Smiling Compositor to work alongside other Smiling Compositors, all of whom are helping us get out the paper.

Must Be Experienced—Full Time Days

In event you are a normally Grumpy Compositor, perhaps you will become a Smiling Compositor when you think of the many company benefits, such as...

Hospitalization Benefits second to none, including $10,000 major medical, all of it paid by the boss, with option of including your family.

Paid Vacation — Two weeks after one year, three weeks after 5 years; four weeks after 15; five weeks after 25 years.

Profit Sharing Program — wonderful opportunity for all after two fiscal years on the job.

Life Insurance — Free $5,000 coverage for heads of household with dependent coverage of $1,000 for the wife, $500 for each of the children, all paid by the boss.

Disability Insurance — contributory program.

Work Hours — yes, you'll be expected to work, too, but close to home, pleasant surroundings, nearby coffee machine, etc.

If You Are a SMILING COMPOSITOR

Polish Plane Crashes

WARSAW—A Polish airliner carrying 51 persons crashed last night near Cracow, Poland, Warsaw radio said. All 46 passengers and five crewmen are believed killed. The plane was an AN-24 bound for Cracow from Warsaw. Cause of the crash was still unknown last night.

Teachers May March

CHICAGO—Members of the Chicago Teachers Union yesterday called for a march of teachers to Springfield April 22 to demand increased state aid to education. A final decision will be made at a meeting of the union's House of Representatives April 11.

John E. Desmond, president of the union, said, "The children of Chicago have been made a political football."

Big Four Talks Open

Big Four talks on the Middle East crisis will open today in New York. French Foreign Minister Michel Debre said yesterday King Hussein of Jordan said he is hopeful the negotiations will bring about permanent peace between Israel and the Arab world.

Debre's statement in Paris confirmed earlier reports from highly placed sources at the United Nations which said talks would begin without publicity.

LBJ Attends Funeral

ABILENE—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, keeping out of the spotlight since he left office, flew from Texas Wednesday to attend the burial of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His attendance was a surprise to security men, who did not know he was coming until his plane showed up above the airport at nearby Salina, Kan.

Oppose Wealth Tax

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposed a proposal to levy a minimum tax on wealthy persons who escape income taxes by taking advantage of certain legal deductions.

Walter Winter, chamber vice president, told the House Ways and Means committee yesterday that if Congress considers deductions improper, it should modify them rather than impose a minimum.

Talk Hope Is Low

WASHINGTON—Little if any progress has been made toward arranging secret talks which President Nixon regards as the last hope of achieving peace in Vietnam. This is the indication from statements made yesterday by State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey.

Asked if any progress had been made, McCloskey said the word "progress" would be "a little strong for me."

Bomb Threat Nipped

NEW YORK—Police uncovered a plot late yesterday to dynamite five major Manhattan department stores during the Easter shopping rush. Eleven of the 21 suspects were arrested and were described as members of the Black Panther party.

The target stores were identified as Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie and Fitch.

Press Is Censored

PRAGUE—The Czechoslovak government reimposed full press censorship yesterday, probably to prevent a crackdown by the Soviet Union. The presidium of the Czechoslovak Communist party said the nation is on "the brink of catastrophe."

Jaroslav Havelka, head of the committee for press and information, said, "We met with the good will and understanding of our allies."

Vote Protest Possible

Claim Ballots Misleading

Charges of irregularities in voting and a threat of an election protest followed the Salt Creek Park District race Tuesday.

Patrick Grealish was elected to a six-year term on write-in votes.

The Herald received numerous complaints of misleading ballots and faulty instructions on the part of election judges including the wife of a present board member, Mrs. Gerald Ahlenius.

Etherton, district secretary, told the Herald Mrs. Ahlenius is "an experienced judge." When asked if it was unethical to have a judge related to a board member, he replied, "Her husband was not up for election this year."

Mrs. Ahlenius angrily denied that she could be prejudiced for any candidate.

"To object to me because my husband is a board member is a direct insult to my character and judgement," she said.

"I only knew Etherton among the five principals and met Marconi on election day. My husband never discussed the election and only mentioned that Etherton and Grealish would be on the ballot," she said.

"I WOULD LIKE to meet the people who objected to me," she said, adding that she is fair and showed no favoritism. She said she has a mind of her own and "no one tells me what to do."

Etherton and Grealish "just filled out the right ballot," she said.

Supporters of write-in candidates Henry Diehl, Michael Lydon and Ronald Salski charged that the ballot did not make it clear there were three positions to be filled on the board and space was provided for only two write-in candidates.

One caller told the Herald judges told him he could put write-in votes "anywhere" but when he showed the judge the ballot, she said "No, it's not correct."

"I finally found out how to fill it in properly," the man said, and "the judge tore up the ballot and gave me a new one."

He added, "When my wife couldn't understand the ballot and asked for instructions from the judges, they kept saying, 'there's the ballot' and would not help her."

ETHERTON, HOWEVER, claimed, "Diehl, Lydon and Salski instructed their people in the wrong way. The judges did an excellent job," he said. "I had 30 of my own ballots thrown out. Marconi had about 15 disqualified and Grealish about 15 or 20."

"I do not feel there were any irregularities," Etherton said.

Diehl told the Herald, "We had an adequate vote, but the voters were confused," while Etherton claimed, "We beat them legitimately, even if you count the ballots that were thrown out."

A phone caller told a Herald reporter, "Etherton admitted it was a bad ballot," when the man talked to him outside the polling office.

Etherton accused Diehl, Lydon and Salski of "hitting below the belt" and said their campaign was "full of half-truths and innuendoes."

DIEHL SAID HE doesn't know what Etherton means by "hitting below the belt." He said the board had a "hostile" attitude toward people during meetings and "wouldn't recognize people who wanted to talk."

Although Diehl said he is not certain about protesting the election, Etherton said he expects a protest to be filed.

Diehl said the board has "argued among themselves over boundaries." They can't afford not to know these things after being in office so long," he said.

At the recent candidates' night at Fremd High School, Grealish replied to a

SALT CREEK FLOODING isn't quite this bad yet, but in case it ever gets this way, these Palatine and Rolling Meadows scuba divers will be prepared. They're members of the Scuba Diving Class offered by Countryside YMCA this year. Classes are held in the pool at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

Supervisor, Clerk Pay Hiked

Approval of pay hikes for the township supervisor and clerk highlighted the annual Palatine Town Meeting Tuesday night at Kimball Hill School, Rolling Meadows.

Voters also approved payment of $28,000 for mental health, $14,000 for School Dist. 15 and $950 for the Leisure Club from the township's surplus funds.

Margaret Chapman, town clerk, told the audience "I worked for $2,400 for the last four years and since I spend most of my time in the office I am entitled to a raise." Her new salary is $3,600 a year.

During the pay hike discussion, Supervisor Howard Olson, who holds the dual titles of town supervisor and supervisor of general assistance, said that "this is the time when the electors must decide on an increase for the next four years."

Olsen's new salary for both jobs is $4,800, an increase of $1,500.

"FOUR YEARS AGO the town board raised the salary of the supervisor of general assistance from $1,800 to $3,600," Olsen told the audience. He said he voted against that increase.

At the time, he recommended the board "scale it down to $1,800." Olsen said the job of supervisor deserves $3,600.

Palatine salaries are among the lowest in Cook County," Olsen added.

One man in the audience said auditors could "set outrageous salaries and we'd have to pay until they were voted out of office."

Another voter in the audience asked about the township's unpaid bills, which total $13,533.

He was told the money will "remain as an obligation" until the creditor waives it. OLSEN SAID creditors are not demanding payment and hopefully they can be paid in one year.

"This will not be a problem next year," he said.

Olsen said paying these bills would cause the township to operate with a shortage of funds. It is better to keep the unpaid bills than deny funds to mental health, schools and the leisure club, he added.

One man told his listeners that because tax money will be delayed 60 days and the operating departments will be short of money, "we should not expend money we don't have and should postpone if we can" the payment of these bills.

"We will need all the money we can get for the next 60 days," he said.

THE AUDIENCE HEARD from several speakers, including Wendell Jones who spoke about Clearbrook Center Countryside Home and the Northwest Mental Health Clinic.

When it was asked why nobody from school Dist. 15 discussed the spending of their allotment, a man said Dist. 15 was "not grabbing for more," only the money they needed.

Mrs. Elaine Lethem, chairman of the Youth Committee, told the audience that "delinquency is a greater problem than we realize" in the suburbs. As suburbs continue to grow, so will this problem, she pointed out.

Mrs. Lethem cited Emmerson Thomas, Dennis Morgan and Phil Smejka, for the fine work they have done, and added the committee is still $6,310 short of meeting its budget of $29,500.

"WE HOPE WE WILL find the extra money before the close of the year," she said.

The road budget of $191,000 was adopted.

2 'Sing-Outs' Set

Sing-Out Palatine, the first "Up With People" local singing group in the state, has launched a massive campaign to call attention to its two-hour concerts, April 18 and 20 at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

To make themselves known to the people of the Northwest suburbs, the enthusiastic group has created 50 posters and printed 35,000 fliers which will be distributed in local towns, schools and churches.

Letters have been sent to 12 radio stations, and Programs, with the group's picture on the cover, are being printed.

Members of the group consider their personal appearance of vital importance and they have done something about improving it in preparation for the concerts.

THE GIRLS HAVE bought or made jumpers and blouses, and matching suit coats have been ordered for the boys. Several cast members are also painting the risers.

Sing-Out Palatine, through its activities, tries to show its enthusiasm for the ideals of "Up With People" on which it is based, and is eager to make it known to the people of the Northwest suburbs.

The performances will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, April 18 and 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, April 20. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Children will be admitted free. Persons wishing additional information are asked to write Sing-Out Palatine, Post Office Box 422, or call 358-2958.

Push for Referendum OK

The Rolling Meadows Community Chest has joined what appears to be a groundswelling effort to win approval of the April 12 High School Dist. 214 referendum. Future of the district's proposed high school in Rolling Meadows depends on passage of the referendum.

In a letter addressed "To the people of Rolling Meadows," the community chest calls for yes votes by Rolling Meadows residents on the referendum, and also for support of Billy K. McMinn, Rolling Meadows businessman who is seeking a seat on the Dist. 214 board.

"WE NEED to provide educational facilities for our young people in keeping with the high standards already established in this district," the letter said.

It also said McMinn "has all the qualifications required to represent the city of Rolling Meadows and its people in any educational action taken by this board."

McMinn worked on the citizens committee which researched the need for a new high school and also is a director of the community chest.

Earlier this week, the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club endorsed the referendum and numerous other organizations are expected to do likewise.

Churchmen Give Income Tax Help

Several members of Lutheran Church of the Cross, 2025 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights are helping low-income families with a "Free Income Tax Service."

At the request of Don Maldonado, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows, the men donate one evening a week for tax assistance.

"THE FIRST LADY I helped gets all her withholding tax back. She made only $4,100 and with five children, she needs that money," said Bob Tesmer of Mount Prospect.

Slate Push for Fair Housing

Rolling Meadows Human Relations Council will focus its efforts this spring on promoting a local fair housing ordinance.

About 30 members of the council were on hand recently to hear James Perrone, director of community services of the Illinois Human Relations Commission, call upon them to reassess their commitment and set new goals.

There is nothing wrong, said Perrone, with a group getting together and talking socially that something must be done, but for the council to remain relevant it must get its purpose into focus.

The council was organized about a year ago to generate human relations interest in the community through an educational program. "But the groundswell has never developed," says Elvin W. Byrom president.

He and the small nucleus who started the council had expected to attract many people who believe in seeking answers to the difficult humanistic problems of today.

TOO MANY OF the interested people are already deeply involved in other activities and do not have time to spare for council work.

"Somehow we haven't been able to do the job we feel we should have done," Byrom says. He is also one of the most energetic presidents the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce has had; and several years ago as library board president, he took the attitude that if a new building was needed, the community would support the cost if the need was explained.

"One thing we have done in the period of a year," he reflects, "Every single one of us have gained so much insight into the significance and nature of the problems that exist in the black-white contrast world."

Each member, he says, was already committed to the cause, but the educational programs have "strengthened our awareness of the depth and scope of the problems."

BUT THE REST of the city seems unaware that the council exists.

"I don't understand the lack of interest," Byrom says. "Now, we're not interested in getting opposition out, except to stimulate people to think about the subject. But I'm disturbed if the opposition doesn't consider this worth thinking about."

In restructuring the council, adopting one project at a time and when a goal is reached moving on to another project, the leaders hope to create a better city-wide understanding of its purpose.

Police by Any Other Name Must Be 'Safety'

ASSEMBLY LINE production of a couple thousand armbands to identify participation in the youth-sponsored hike for the Hungry on Good Friday kept Sherry Flack and Ellen Kling busy one night this week at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

The traffic division of the Rolling Meadows Police Department could well be renamed the safety bureau.

"We're always ready to talk on safety," says Officer Charles Smith. He generally cruises about in the white squad car assigned to the traffic division when he isn't in his office, decorated with numerous safety plaques and awards.

Emphasis on public relations and driver education, Smith believes, is the best accident prevention program.

Accident investigation is another phase of the traffic division's work, and the police were able to track down and make apprehensions on 57 of the 68 hit-run incidents last year.

It's hard to trace hit-run collisions in shopping center parking lots, although crime laboratories can tell the make of car from a speck of paint left on a damaged fender. "We try to find witnesses who may have observed the other car," explains Smith. In apartment parking lots it's easier to find the offending vehicle, at least if the driver is one of the tenants.

SMITH LIKES TO relate one incident where inter-departmental co-operation helped locate a truck in Carpentersville that could be described only vaguely by the victim.

Placing the blame for an accident is meticulous business. Tire marks and position of vehicles after a collision are among the clues. Parts of damaged cars are salvaged and checked, with a crime lab called in to verify the opinion of local policemen.

But accident prevention is the most valuable work, Smith believes. Smith is assisted by Officer Dennis Van Jacobs, and now awaiting transfer from general patrol to the traffic division is Eric Bublitz.

Lack of manpower limits the number of safety programs the men can give for schools, youth organizations and church groups and to prepare young people for taking driver's license examinations. Since January 1, adults, too, will have to take tests every nine years, and the police are offering help to these people, many of them who never had to take a test before.

Safety education starts young. Smith puts on a program for the pre-school children enrolled in the Rolling Meadows Park District tot-spot.

Bicycle safety training gets a big push in spring, when youngsters start wheeling to school. Notice is served on riders who disobey regulations, and they have to attend a Saturday morning safety hearing with their parents to view films and receive instruction in correct pedalling. "We have no repeats," said Smith, "except some kids come back voluntarily to see the free movie."

SCHOOL CROSSING guards come under the traffic division supervision, and Smith is the liaison between local industries and the state and county highway departments, which have undertaken a continuing series of meetings to work out potential rush hour congestion.

The wide-spread highway construction

scheduled for the next year or two is of major concern to thousands of workers in area plants.

Smith considers most of his work progressive, but the time he spends on ridding the city of abandoned autos is wasted, he believes. The only satisfaction is in the post facto education of the owner, when and if found, who then has to pay the disposal costs.

The most frustrating aspect of the traffic division work perhaps is to define a problem — traffic signals, for example — and then be unable to accomplish the solution because of lack of funds or state regulations. A few weeks ago plans were completed for ordering a professional comprehensive traffic survey of the city, only to have state highway officials advise that such a survey would become obsolete before it could be completed.

So Smith redoubles his efforts on safety education as the best way to prevent accidents

question on Salt Creek boundaries and said he would like to know this himself, adding, "That is why I would like to be on the board. They should make these things clear to people."

DIEHL SAID HE wanted "something done with Winston Park Unit 8," a small park that is now "a mud hole," and "I'd like to see some swings and other things for children. Even some grass would help."

Board Pres. Walter Pepler said he didn't believe judges failed to give proper instructions. In regard to Diehl, Lydon and Salski, he said, "I don't know what formal complaint they could have."

Pepler denied the board had legal petitions thrown out. The three men "claimed we threw out legal petitions right up to election time," Pepler told the Herald.

He said there was "no opposition from the board" to the three men.

Marconi claimed that the grounds for complaining about faulty ballots were invalid since "the forms were printed by Pettibone Forms, a large company that prints national election ballots."

He said he was not concerned with an election protest since "they would still lose with the 51 invalid ballots."

He said he conducted a heavy "door-to-door" campaign. His wife also campaigned among the neighbors, Marconi said.

Eucharist Services At Immanuel Church

Palatine Immanuel Lutheran Church will present the second of four scheduled Holy Week Worship services today, Maundy Thursday, with Eucharist at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Eucharist services will also be held tomorrow, Good Friday, at 3, 6:30 and 9 p.m.

Easter Sunday sunrise service begins at 6 a.m. followed by Eucharist services at 7:30, 8:45, 10 and 11:30 a.m.

Gas Hits Firemen

Toxic fumes from what was described as a "violent chemical reaction" yesterday morning in Elk Grove Village, hospitalized 15 firemen, including Chief Allan Hulett.

Firemen said the mid-morning incident at Sanford Chemical Co., 1946 Touhy, Elk Grove, resulted in no serious injuries, but an unknown number of company employees and 15 firemen were hospitalized for observation.

The fumes resulting from the event included toxic chlorine gas, which could result in lung damage. The hospitalization was recommended in case treatment was needed.

Firemen said the 8:55 a.m. incident was "a violent chemical reaction," but not an explosion. It produced heavy toxic smoke, did little damage to the building, and resulted in no injuries other than inhalation of fumes.

ONE FIREMAN SAID, "It was sort of a flare up; there was no fire, and it wasn't an explosion like dynamite." He added that 15 firemen, including Hulett and the department's three full-time lieutenants, were taken to St. Alexius hospital.

Exact cause of the incident is unknown as yet, but firemen do know the fumes were produced when sodium dichloro-s-triazinetrione was mixed with an unknown chemical, producing the reaction.

Fire officials said that no plant personnel had to be transported by ambulance to local hospitals, but examinations were recommended in case of injury from fumes.

The department called in off-duty personnel, and received manpower help from nearby fire departments to meet the immediate shortage.

Hunger Hike Send-off Set

A disc jockey, a "soul" music group and weatherman Harry Volkmann will be on hand to help launch the Hike for the Hungry Friday.

Volkmann will give both a blessing and a weather prediction to the several thousand area young people expected to turn out for the 17-mile benefit march from Park Ridge to Rolling Meadows.

Also on hand for the 8 a.m. ceremony at Maine East High School, Dempster Street and Potter Road, will be WCPL disc jockey

Jimmy P. Staggs, well known to the marchers — if not their parents, and a singing group known as the "Steelers."

A record by the "Steelers" will be released next week, hunger hike spokesmen said in announcing the program.

"We plan to step off promptly at 9 a.m.," the spokesmen said, but declined to predict when — or how many — of the couple thousand teenage marchers will make the full route.

THE MARCH GOAL in Rolling Meadows is the Northwest Opportunity Center, one of the three agencies that will benefit from the teenagers' hike.

Persons can join the march only if they have sponsors willing to pay five cents or more a mile to the Hike for the Hungry fund.

Young people who organized the hike decided that monies raised should be split evenly between the Opportunity Center, a local self-help agency working with northwest suburban low income families; an Ecuador farm development project started with help from the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, and Red Cross aid to victims of the Nigerian-Biafran civil war.

Registration of hikers will start at 7:30 a.m. Friday at Maine East, with separate tables for enrollees from each high school and church involved in the project.

Hike spokesmen said persons who have not registered can sign up for the march that day — provided they have sponsors willing to donate to the cause.

Symphony Drive Names Chairmen

Two local women have been named to head area efforts in the $200,000 fund drive for the Chicago Symphony.

Mrs. John R. Siragusa, Barrington Hills, and Mrs. F. Joseph Scharon, Inverness, are serving as chairman and co-chairman of the drive sponsored by the Fox River Valley Committee of the Women's Committee of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

NOW BEGINS the 78th year, the Chicago Symphony has become an integral part of the musical and cultural life of the area. However, it is presently facing the most critical financial period of its history, according to Mrs. Scharon.

Also serving on the committee are Mrs. Graham Ross and Mrs. John Coates, both from Inverness.

Palatine Youth Officers Elected

New officers have been elected for the Palatine Township Youth Organization.

Bill Hake of St. Viator High School is the new president. Mary Lou Fraser of Palatine High is first vice president.

Two Seeking Trustee Post

Two Palatine residents are seeking only one vacant position as township school trustee in the April 12 election.

William Heise Jr., and Michael Reese have filed candidate positions, but only one will be elected to the expiring six-year term.

John Hughes, presently seeking re-election to the village board, has served as school trustee for the past six years but declined not to seek another term.

Heise, who lives at 546 S. Cedar, is president of the Palatine Savings and Loan REESE is assistant vice president of the Palatine National Bank.

The three-man board is in charge of all land owned by School Dist. 15 and responsible for the handling of funds.

Other trustees include Donald Winter, whose term expires in 1971, and Walter Vartanian, who won election to a six-year term in 1967.

Reds Release Four

HONG KONG — Four of the six Americans captured by Chinese Communists Feb. 16 were released early this morning. They are Carol Pauline Zinky, 10; Mrs. Joan Von Sydow, 47, and her daughters, Christine, 15 and Sarah, 12.

Two other Americans taken at the same time were not released, according to late dispatches. They are Simeon Baldwin, 58, and Bessie Hope McDonald, 46. They were captured in pleasure yachts.

Polish Plane Crashes

WARSAW — A Polish airliner carrying 51 persons crashed last night near Cracow, Poland, Warsaw radio said. All 46 passengers and five crewmen are believed killed.

The plane was an AN-24 bound for Cracow from Warsaw. Cause of the crash was still unknown last night.

Teachers May March

CHICAGO — Members of the Chicago Teachers Union yesterday called for a march of teachers to Springfield April 22 to demand increased state aid to education. A final decision will be made at a meeting of the union's House of Representatives April 11.

John E. Desmond, president of the union, said, "The children of Chicago have been made a political football."

Big Four Talks Open

Big Four talks on the Middle East crisis will open today in New York. French Foreign Minister Michel Debre said yesterday King Hussein of Jordan said he is hopeful the negotiations will bring about permanent peace between Israel and the Arab world.

Debre's statement in Paris confirmed earlier reports from highly placed sources at the United Nations which said talks would begin without publicity.

LBJ Attends Funeral

ABILENE — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, keeping out of the spotlight since he left office, flew from Texas Wednesday to attend the burial of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His attendance was a surprise to security men, who did not know he was coming until his plane showed up above the airport at nearby Sahna, Kan.

Oppose Wealth Tax

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposed a proposal to levy a minimum tax on wealthy persons who escape income taxes by taking advantage of certain legal deductions.

Walter Winter, chamber vice president, told the House Ways and Means committee yesterday that if Congress considers deductions improper, it should modify them rather than impose a minimum.

Talk Hope Is Low

WASHINGTON — Little if any progress has been made toward arranging secret talks which President Nixon regards as the last hope of achieving peace in Vietnam. This is the indication from statements made yesterday by State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey.

Asked if any progress had been made, McCloskey said the word "progress" would be "a little strong for me."

Bomb Threat Nipped

NEW YORK — Police uncovered a plot late yesterday to dynamite five major Manhattan department stores during the Easter shopping rush. Eleven of the 21 suspects were arrested and were described as members of the Black Panther party.

The target stores were identified as Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie and Fitch.

Launch Set For Hikers

Marchers For Hunger To Start At 8

A disc jockey, a "soul" music group and weatherman Harry Volkman will be on hand to help launch the Hike for the Hungry Friday.

Volkman will give both a blessing and a weather prediction to the several thousand area young people expected to turn out for the 17-mile benefit march from Park Ridge to Rolling Meadows.

Also on hand for the 8 a.m. ceremony at Maine East High School, Dempster Street and Potter Road, will be WCFL disc jockey Jimmy P. Stagg, well known to the marchers — if not their parents, and a singing group known as the "Steelers."

A record by the "Steelers" will be released next week, hunger hike spokesmen said in announcing the program.

"We plan to step off promptly at 8 a.m.," the spokesman said, but declined to predict when — or how many — of the couple thousand teenage marchers will make the full route.

Mrs. Shelk Hits Eligibility

Wheeling Township school trustee candidate Mrs. Joanne Shelk of Wheeling said this week she is "distressed" that no one will act on her challenge to the candidacy of her opponent, Glenn Anderson of Arlington Heights.

She said that state statutes clearly indicate that Anderson will be ineligible to serve if elected, since he is from Dist. 25 and the trustee board already includes someone from that district.

Mrs. Shelk's interpretation of the statutes was backed up Tuesday night by township school trustee Atty. Marvin Metge of Mount Prospect. He said his opinion is confirmed by legal advisers to Ray Page, state superintendent of public instruction.

But Metge told township school trustees Robert Sir and Earl Richardson that it was his opinion they had no power to rule on Anderson's eligibility as a candidate.

IF HE IS ELECTED, Anderson's eligibility to serve could only be challenged in a law suit filed by some township voter, Metge stated.

Sir and Richardson, following Metge's advice, voted to take no action on Mrs. Shelk's challenge, filed March 24 without fanfare.

Metge had previously submitted the dispute to the county board of election commissioners. They declined to rule on the case.

Mrs. Shelk says she has not decided whether she will file suit if Anderson is elected.

"I don't know Mr. Anderson. This is nothing personal," she stressed. "But I do, however, feel that state law should be followed. There is a principle involved."

If Anderson is elected, it would not be the first time that the township school trustees included more than one person from the same elementary school district.

THE BOARD NOW includes Sir and William L. Griffin, both residents of Dist. 25.

The same legal question was raised in the 1967 township school election — but when Sir and Griffin were both elected no one challenged the eligibility of either man.

De Blase Is Park Winner

Eugene De Blase of Mount Prospect was re-elected Tuesday as park commissioner for the River Trails Park District by an 86-vote margin over his opponent, Norman Johnson of Mount Prospect.

De Blase received 148 votes, while Johnson received 62 of the 210 votes cast in the election. The voting results will be officially canvassed by the park board at 8:30 tonight.

De Blase was elected to serve a six-year term in the first election since the park district was created in 1965.

Gas Hits Firemen

Toxic fumes from what was described as a "violent chemical reaction" yesterday morning in Elk Grove Village, hospitalized 15 firemen, including Chief Allan Hulett.

Firemen said the mid-morning incident at Sanford Chemical Co., 1945 Touhy, Elk Grove, resulted in no serious injuries, but an unknown number of company employees and 15 firemen were hospitalized for observation.

The fumes resulting from the event included toxic chlorine gas, which could result in lung damage. The hospitalization was recommended in case treatment was needed.

Firemen said the 8:55 a.m. incident was "a violent chemical reaction," but not an explosion. It produced heavy toxic smoke, did little damage to the building, and resulted in no injuries other than inhalation of fumes.

ONE FIREMAN SAID, "It was sort of a flare up; there was no fire, and it wasn't an explosion like dynamite." He added that 15 firemen, including Hulett and the department's three full-time lieutenants, were taken to St. Alexius hospital.

Exact cause of the incident is unknown as yet, but firemen do know the fumes were produced when sodium dichloroarsite was mixed with an unknown chemical, producing the reaction.

Fire officials said that no plant personnel had to be transported by ambulance to local hospitals, but examinations were recommended in case of injury from fumes.

The department called in off-duty personnel, and received manpower help from nearby fire departments to meet the immediate shortage.

Shutt Is Happy With Dist. 57

Jerry Shutt is basing his bid for a position on the School Dist. 57 board of education on an "earnest" desire to insure that the best education possible is provided for children in the community.

"I'll be able to take an impartial look at the entire district and its policies because my children have already graduated from Dist. 57 schools," explained Shutt.

He is one of three candidates seeking a position on the school board in the April 12 election. There are two available positions, both three-year terms.

Shutt has "no ax to grind" with Dist. 57 which he believes is already doing a good job in educating its students. "The district is managed by efficient administrators and teachers who believe in progressive education," he said.

A resident of Mount Prospect for the past 22 years, Shutt perceives his campaign for a position on the school board as a public service to the community.

AS A MEMBER OF the board of education, he would re-enforce the concept that the board is a policy-making body and that the administration of school policies should be left in the hands of the administrators. "The board is not responsible nor can it be expected to do everyone's job," Shutt said.

He added that all complaints involving the school district should first be channeled through the school administrators and then presented to the board for its consideration, if the complaints involve school policies.

The issue in his campaign for election to the board is to continue the educational program already outlined by district officials and to insure that the quality of education in the district is the best.

"Central School is no longer an issue in this campaign," Shutt said. "The decision has already been made to sell the school. The only question now is under what arrangements and conditions the sale will be negotiated."

If elected to the board, he would encourage regular and thorough investigations of school finances because the cost for maintaining the schools in the district should be a constant concern.

"A BALANCED BUDGET would be great," he said, "because no one can complain about school finances then. But let's be realistic, because costs are steadily rising due to our rising economy."

"It's going to cost a lot more to run our schools, and the money is going to have to come from some place. Deficit spending, tax anticipation warrants, and increased state aid must be considered."

If Lincoln becomes the only junior high school in the district, he agrees that busing students will be a necessity. "But the quality of education is much more important than whether or not students will have to ride buses," he said. "Busing students to Lincoln should not be considered as such a big problem or any real issue."

As for a combined district effort to establish a school for educating the mentally handicapped children, Shutt has no argument against the proposed plan or any objection.

Investment Firm Elects Wojtar

Albert P. Wojtar has been elected to become a stockholder in the investment firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.

Wojtar joined the firm in 1956 after graduating from Eureka College, and served as an account executive in its Chicago offices since 1957. He served in the Army's counter intelligence corps during the Korean War.

He and his wife, the former Phyllis A. Erck of Mount Prospect, reside with their daughter Maria in Des Plaines.

View a Letdown

School Dist. 59 officials expressed disappointment with a statement released Tuesday afternoon on the status of negotiations with the Teachers' Council for next year's teaching contracts.

"I felt the comments were unfair to Dick Hess," Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas said yesterday afternoon. "Dick has given outstanding service to the district and has always acted in good faith."

Hess was accused by the teachers of delaying bargaining sessions until after 9 p.m. because of music lessons he is taking.

BUT THERE WAS no further comment on accusations of stalling from the Teachers' Council. "We will continue to honor our commitment of not talking about the negotiations until they are settled," Thomas said yesterday.

He noted that the latest bargaining session was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. last night, and felt that further progress would be made.

"We have been making progress all along," Thomas said. Nonetheless, he would not comment on inquiries relating to how close the two parties were to agreement.

All that has been made public about the proposed teaching contracts in Dist. 59 thus far was the base salary request of $7,500, an increase of $1,200 over current levels.

THAT INDICATION was made by the Teachers' Council several weeks ago.

Meanwhile teachers continued to huddle behind closed doors, planning their next moves.

Teachers Back Issues Only

Although tempted to endorse two of the seven School Dist. 59 board of education candidates, the District Teachers' Council instead pledged support to issues.

At the group's meeting Tuesday afternoon, the council hashed out the qualities of the candidates, apparently could not find agreement on two individuals, and decided to support those who are willing to "increase the district educational rate, lower the student-teacher ratio, and support current educational programs."

ADDITIONALLY, they like those who "are active, knowledgeable and concerned," the latter qualification directed at involvement in district policy decisions. The council gave no hint as to whom they felt fit into those qualifications.

2 'Sing-Outs' Set

Sing-Out Palatine, the first "Up With People" local singing group in the state, has launched a massive campaign to call attention to its two-hour concerts, April 18 and 20 at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

To make themselves known to the people of the Northwest suburbs, the enthusiastic group has created 50 posters and printed 35,000 fliers which will be distributed in local towns, schools and churches.

Letters have been sent to 12 radio stations, and Programs, with the group's picture on the cover, are being printed.

Members of the group consider their personal appearance of vital importance and they have done something about improving it in preparation for the concerts.

THE GIRLS HAVE bought or made jumpers and blouses, and matching suit coats have been ordered for the boys. Several cast members are also painting the risers.

Sing-Out Palatine, through its activities, tries to show its enthusiasm for the ideals of "Up With People" on which it is based, and is eager to make it known to the people of the Northwest suburbs.

The performances will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, April 18 and 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 20. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Children will be admitted free. Persons wishing additional information are asked to write Sing-Out Palatine, Post Office Box 422, or call 358-2958.

Judges OKd For Election

School Dist. 57 board members accepted the resignation of Mrs. Nancy Schulman, fifth grade teacher at Busse School, effective June 13, at their board meeting this week.

Sherry A. Randall and Judith A. Milazzo were both accepted for teaching positions in the district for the 1969-70 school year at the second step in the bachelor's degree column on the salary schedule.

In other action, 24 judges for the April 12 election of school board members were approved by the board. The judges will be shared by Harper Junior, College District and High School Dist. 214.

THREE CANDIDATES endorsed by the Dist. 57 school caucus have been listed on the ballot. They are Alex Casper, an accountant for AT&T; Jerrold Shutt, owner of Seventeen Specialties, and Leo Floros, incumbent, who is employed by a public relations firm.

Polling places will be the same as those in the March 29 referendum — Lions Park, Lincoln, Fairview and Busse schools. There will be six judges at each precinct, and the polls will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Nursery School Welcomes Easter

Although there was snow on the ground, pre-school children from the Prospect Heights Nursery School ushered in the Easter season with their annual Easter party Monday at the Prospect Heights Community Church.

More than 75 children under the direction of their teachers, Mrs. Helen Knechtel and Mrs. Delphine Georgeson, colored Easter eggs, played games, and sang. The highlight of the party was the distribution of Easter baskets from the teachers.

Parents interested in enrolling their pre-school children in nursery school for the 1969-70 term should register now. Applications are being accepted by Mrs. Peggy Crossman at 392-6315.

The purpose of the Prospect Heights Nursery School is to teach children how to associate with each other. No attempt is made to duplicate work offered in kindergarten, but the school works to promote growth and development in character and personality.

Lewis Supports Congreve's Bid

A strong endorsement of Daniel Congreve for re-election as mayor of Mount Prospect came from Trustee Earl Lewis this week.

"There is no one presently involved in our village government who is the equal of Dan Congreve in knowledge of state statutes as they apply to village administration, or as skilled in implementing them to the advantage of our village. He is a practical realist, not a theorist," Lewis said.

"In addition to his knowledge and ability, Dan also is in the enviable position of being able to devote the time necessary to do an effective job."

Lewis also cited Congreve's support by other trustees and candidates for trustees and claimed the mayor also has the support of the village manager, "who all work harmoniously together in all areas of endeavor . . . both legislatively and administratively." Lewis has been a trustee of the village for two years.

And So Does Jacobsmeyer

Chairman George Jacobsmeyer of the Mount Prospect zoning board of appeals is endorsing Mayor Dan Congreve's bid for re-election on April 15.

Jacobsmeyer stated in a recent letter to the Mount Prospect Herald that he has been impressed with Congreve's organizational ability and his success in convincing conscientious citizens to give their time to the village administration so that residents might have a better village in which to live.

He noted that Congreve has always been interested in the work of the zoning board of appeals, and yet he has never interfered with the direction that members of "THE MOST IMPORTANT and necessary questions to consider in this proposal are finding a central location convenient for the children and finding the best facilities available for their needs," Shutt said.

JERRY SHUTT is one of three candidates seeking a three-year position on the Dist. 57 school board in the April 12 election.

Moats Wins Applause

If applause is any indication, Larry Moats, the young Harper Junior College candidate, gained much support from Palatine residents Monday evening as he spoke at the League of Women Voters' candidates night.

One of three candidates seeking two positions on the college board, Moats was the only Harper candidate to attend the forum.

A student at the junior college, Moats got a comment on his age from someone in the audience.

"Most people here probably don't realize that you will be having your 21st birthday on April 10, just two days before the election," the questioner said.

HE CONTINUED WITH questions about

Moats' beliefs concerning student and administrative policy at the college.

Moats began his reply with a thank-you. "I appreciate your comments, Mr. James Hamill, especially since you currently are a member of the junior college board."

It was then that Palatine residents responded with a ringing round of applause. Hamill, of Palatine, was re-elected to a three-year term on the Harper board last April.

Other questions directed at the young candidate centered on changes he would try to bring in policy and activities at Harper.

Asked what existing policies he would like to see changed, Moats said reasons should be given when the board decides to dismiss a teacher.

In addition, he said students should be given some voice in hiring teachers, but not necessarily be given a vote in the matter.

HE WAS ASKED IF tax money currently is being used effectively by the college board.

"From my limited knowledge at the present time, I think it is, but the board might have gone overboard in the field of public relations, recently spending $55,000 in that area," he said.

When the formal discussion period for all candidates was completed, Moats was among the most popular office-seekers in terms of questions from individuals who wanted to know more about his candidacy.

The two incumbents, who were not present Monday night, also seeking voter approval in April 12's college board election are Richard Johnson and John Kuranz.

Interfaith Open Houses Set

The Rolling Meadows Ministerial Fellowship has initiated a series of openhouse visits at churches of various faiths, titled Operation Understanding, starting Sunday, May 4.

The first visit will be held at Saint Colette Church, 3900 South Meadow Drive 2:30 p.m.

Purpose of the series is to increase an awareness of what people of other faiths believe and practice and to foster friendship and understanding among people of diverse religious backgrounds.

Churches involved in Operation Understanding are: Bethel Lutheran Church, Meadows Baptist Church, Trinity Lutheran Church, Community Church of Rolling Meadows and Saint Colette's Catholic Church.

EACH CHURCH will have its open house on a Sunday afternoon from 2:30 until 5 in May, June, September, October and November.

The programs will feature tours of church facilities, explanations of teaching and practice, question-and-answer periods, and coffee and refreshments.

Members of all congregations and anyone else interested are invited.

CAPT. JOHN A. KUBIK of 802 S. Elm St., Mount Prospect, receives the Air Medal for meritorious achievement in aerial combat in Vietnam.

Welfare Council Meet Scheduled April 10

The Northwest Suburban Welfare Council will hold a luncheon meeting on April 10 at the Des Plaines YMCA.

Walter Jones, agency relations director for the Suburban Community Chest Council, will speak on "financing services in the suburbs" following the luncheon and a short business meeting.

Anyone is invited to attend the luncheon meeting. Evadean Watts, at 255-0120 in the Clearbrook Center, has further information.

Reds Release Four

HONG KONG — Four of the six Americans captured by Chinese Communists Feb. 16 were released early this morning. They are Carol Pauline Zinky, 10, Mrs. Joan Von Sydow, 47, and her daughters, Christine, 15, and Sarah, 12.
Two other Americans taken at the same time were not released, according to late dispatches. They are Simeon Baldwin, 56, and Bessie Hope McDonald, 46. They were captured in pleasure yachts.

Polish Plane Crashes

WARSAW — A Polish airliner carrying 51 persons crashed last night near Cracow, Poland, Warsaw radio said. All 46 passengers and five crewmen are believed killed.
The plane was an AN-24 bound for Cracow from Warsaw. Cause of the crash was still unknown last night.

Teachers May March

CHICAGO — Members of the Chicago Teachers Union yesterday called for a march of teachers to Springfield April 22 to demand increased state aid to education. A final decision will be made at a meeting of the union's House of Representatives April 11.

John E. Desmond, president of the union, said, "The children of Chicago have been made a political football."

Big Four Talks Open

Big Four talks on the Middle East crisis will open today in New York, French Foreign Minister Michel Debre said yesterday. King Hussein of Jordan said he is hopeful the negotiations will bring about permanent peace between Israel and the Arab world.

Debre's statement in Paris confirmed earlier reports from highly placed sources at the United Nations which said talks would begin without publicity.

LBJ Attends Funeral

ABILENE — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, keeping out of the spotlight since he left office, flew from Texas Wednesday to attend the burial of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His attendance was a surprise to security men, who did not know he was coming until his plane showed up above the airport at nearby Salina, Kan.

Oppose Wealth Tax

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposed a proposal to levy a minimum tax on wealthy persons who escape income taxes by taking advantage of certain legal deductions.
Walter Winter, chamber vice president, told the House Ways and Means committee yesterday that if Congress considers deductions improper, it should modify them rather than impose a minimum.

Talk Hope Is Low

WASHINGTON — Little if any progress has been made toward arranging secret talks which President Nixon regards as the last hope of achieving peace in Vietnam. This is the indication from statements made yesterday by State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey.
Asked if any progress had been made, McCloskey said the word "progress" would be "a little strong for me."

Bomb Threat Nipped

NEW YORK — Police uncovered a plot late yesterday to dynamite five major Manhattan department stores during the Easter shopping rush. Eleven of the 21 suspects were arrested and were described as members of the Black Panther party.
The target stores were identified as Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie and Fitch.

July Book Vote Slated

Gas Hits Firemen

Toxic fumes from what was described as a "violent chemical reaction" yesterday morning in Elk Grove Village, hospitalized 15 firemen, including Chief Allan Huelt.

Firemen said the mid-morning incident at Sanford Chemical Co., 1945 Touhy, Elk Grove, resulted in no serious injuries, but an unknown number of company employees and 15 firemen were hospitalized for observation.

The fumes resulting from the event included toxic chlorine gas, which could result in lung damage. The hospitalization was recommended in case treatment was needed.

Firemen said the 8.55 a.m. incident was "a violent chemical reaction," but not an explosion. It produced heavy toxic smoke, did little damage to the building, and resulted in no injuries other than inhalation of fumes.

ONE FIREMAN SAID, "It was sort of a flare up; there was no fire, and it wasn't an explosion like dynamite." He added that 15 firemen, including Huelt and the department's three full-time lieutenants, were taken to St. Alexius hospital.

Exact cause of the incident is unknown as yet, but firemen do know the fumes were produced when sodium dichloro-s-triazinetrione was mixed with an unknown chemical, producing the reaction.

Fire officials said that no plant personnel had to be transported by ambulance to local hospitals, but examinations were recommended in case of injury from fumes.

The department called in off-duty personnel, and received manpower help from nearby fire departments to meet the immediate shortage.

2 'Sing-Outs' Set

Sing-Out Palatine, the first "Up With People" local singing group in the state, has launched a massive campaign to call attention to its two-hour concerts, April 18 and 20 at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

To make themselves known to the people of the Northwest suburbs, the enthusiastic group has created 50 posters and printed 35,000 fliers which will be distributed in local towns, schools and churches.

Letters have been sent to 12 radio stations, and Programs, with the group's picture on the cover, are being printed.

Members of the group consider their personal appearance of vital importance and they have done something about improving it in preparation for the concerts.

THE GIRLS HAVE bought or made jumpers and blouses, and matching suit coats have been ordered for the boys. Several cast members are also painting the risers.

Sing-Out Palatine, through its activities, tries to show its enthusiasm for the ideals of "Up With People" on which it is based, and is eager to make it known to the people of the Northwest suburbs.

The performances will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, April 18 and 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 20. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Children will be admitted free. Persons wishing additional information are asked to write Sing-Out Palatine, Post Office Box 422, or call 338-2958.

Apartment Burns

Fire damaged an apartment at 103 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights, last night.

Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights fire department officials said the blaze apparently was caused by an overloaded extension cord.

No one was injured, but damage was estimated at $500.

Independents All Tattered and Torn

The smoke is drifting from the trenches to reveal shreds and tatters of independent village board hopes hanging from old placards.

The last of the Village Caucus Party army has been mustered out, its commanders decimated with fifths of Johnny Walker Black Label, its privates and non-coms clutching cans of Budweiser.

Election day belonged to the organization, and for once in a long while it was well organized.

Under direction of George C. (Bud) Becham, campaign field marshal, the legions did their job. More than 3,000 phone calls were made the night before elections.

More than half the village was hit directly by the Caucus candidates; the rest was covered by their block and precinct captains who carefully noted who

AND A CONCERTED effort was made to get out the pro vote.

The independents tried hard, but since they ran independently, their attacks were not coordinated.

The independents didn't have public information offices.

In some areas of the village, independent literature was distributed by children on tricycles who never really tried to convince the leaflet recipient that he should vote for the candidate in question.

Final Caucus estimates put the party's volunteer army at something like 800 strong. Final independent estimates showed anything from five to 50. It was a matter of logistics, political logistics, that allowed the Caucus to win Tuesday.

And when the final results came in, Trustee John Walsh, Caucus candidate for village president, wasn't at all surprised.

In fact, that is precisely what he said.

He had rolled up 5,028 votes to 1,567 for independent Charles A. Zeller, whom everybody at Caucus headquarters referred to as "Charlie."

THEN CAME THE Caucus trustees, none of whom was ever in any trouble with incumbent Frank Palmatier leading with 5,186, Dwight Walton next with 4,789, followed by William Griffin with 4,170.

In fact, the Caucus did so well that the combined vote for independent trustee candidates Mrs. Barbara Vidmar, 2,160 and Mrs. Jean Hanlon, 2,213, could not equal the totals for either Palmatier or Walton.

The only close race, bracketed in red on the tote board at Caucus headquarters, featured Mrs. Jeanne Novotny, incumbent clerk, an independent, running against Mrs. Betty Revard.

And the difference in this race was the votes cast by the outlying precincts, those far-flung subdivisions on the far south and north that have only recently become politically conscious.

These are areas that don't remember Mrs. Novotny's race in 1965 as a Caucus

SPRING VACATION activities for local students include roller skating at the YMCA in Des Plaines. The kids are also using the week for bowling, babysitting, and Easter shopping expeditions to area stores.

Mrs. Florence Hendrickson, president of the Arlington Heights Inter-Governmental Council last night that the library will hold a referendum no later than mid-July to seek funds for more books.

The board has not officially approved the referendum — it will consider it once again next week — but Mrs. Hendrickson said, "I can say that we will ask for a referendum before mid-July."

The referendum, if approved by the voters, would raise the general operating fund from 12 cents to 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation in the village.

In addition to discussion of the library's book needs, the council, comprised of representatives of taxing bodies serving the Arlington Heights area, heard High School Dist. 214 Board Pres. Arthur Aronson discuss his district's April 12 referendum.

ARONSON TOLD the group the referendum, to cover increases in both the maximum educational tax rate and the building fund rate, would cover salaries and construction costs for a new high school in Rolling Meadows.

The last educational tax referendum was approved five years ago. Since then, Aronson said, the cost per student, enrollment, salaries and building fund expenditures have increased, while assessed valuation of taxable property has dropped.

He said building costs have zoomed up almost 25 per cent just since John Hersey High School was completed last fall. He said the April 12 referendum would need all the support possible to insure passage.

In addition to Mrs. Hendrickson and Aronson, other officials attending included Dr. Donald Strong and Robert Bukowski from School Dist. 25 and L. A. Hanson, village manager of Arlington Heights.

Hanson said the $6.6 million village budget is up for approval before the village board Monday night. He said water and sewer improvements in the village will be a key part of the budget.

STRONG SAID Dist. 25 is working directly with the village's safety commission and interested groups to gain safety and traffic improvements in Arlington Heights.

His first target is improving safety on Arlington Heights Road, and Dist. 25 is contacting various groups to communicate and improve chances of gaining action on that road.

The shadow of Gov. Richard Ogilvie's proposal for a state income tax hung heavily over the meeting room in South Junior High School.

candidate. Areas that don't remember her activities, Republican and otherwise.

AREAS THAT THE Caucus hit hard. "I bet we must have had 90 coffees on the north side alone," said Carl Pasquale, Caucus Party chairman.

It was an effort that no independent could match, not even someone with Mrs. Novotny's political savvy and ambition.

And so the village has a new clerk, and presumably the first Democrat to hold that office in years. At least is seemed that way judging from the happy Democrats milling around Caucus place in the Evergreen Shopping Center.

And while Mrs. Revard did not actually cavort, she did smile almost continually and said, "I am amazed that a stranger and a Democrat could come in and win, but in a way I'm not, because of all the work that was done."

And her husband, Robert said, "I didn't know I had such a politician in the family."

AND AS AREAS like Greenbrier delivered Greenbrier delivered 132 votes for Mrs. Revard to 41 for Mrs. Novotny, beer cans hissed open and Caucuses breathed, "Ahhhhhhhh!"

But no sooner was the battle won than the vigilant observers of things municipal chorused, "Now who's Walsh going to appoint to fill his seat for the next two years?"

Who indeed? With heavy Caucus support from the north and south sides, the outlying areas are looking for consideration. None of the current board, including those just elected, live far from the center of town.

Walsh must also consider the professional qualifications that he needs on the board. He has only one attorney, Palm-

Bressler Outlines Program

LeRoy Bressler, retiring village trustee who was elected to the Arlington Heights Park Board Tuesday, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The voters of Arlington Heights have clearly indicated their concern about our parks and recreation programs. This is evident from the intense interest shown during candidate nights at the various neighborhood association meetings as well as the election results last night. The message is clear.

"(1) Our park facilities and recreation programs must be expanded rapidly to meet the unprecedented population growth of the village. We are playing 'catch up'.

"(2) We must destroy the Pioneer Park slant recreation syndrome and be more responsive to the new areas of the village. New residents should be able to tap in to water, sewers — and parks — or at least a vibrant and responsive park program.

"(3) A comprehensive program for all age groups must be developed.

"(4) Overlapping recreation programs among school districts, the village and the park district must be identified, discussed and assigned by agreement.

"(5) ADMINISTRATION of our parks must be efficient and be properly compensated. The tremendous burden of communication with our residents mainly falls on administrative and recreational personnel.

"I was personally sorry to see our incumbent Jack Edwards lose. We owe our present parks and recreation programs to Edwards and others who have put in long hours without pay to benefit our community.

"At the same time, I welcome the opportunity to serve with Tom McShane (who also won a place on the park board in Tuesday's election). This guy has ideas, drive, energy and the type of Irish enthusiasm we need to stimulate our over-all park program.

"Nathaniel Leighton contributed several imaginative ideas on recreation during the campaign. Specifically, his proposed sharing of our recreation facilities with inner city children should be pursued. I know Nat will act as our consultant on this as well as other recreation programs."

Income Tax Help

Several members of Lutheran Church of the Cross, 2025 S. Goebbert Road, Arlington Heights are helping low-income families with a "Free Income Tax Service."

At the request of Don Maldonado, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows, the men donate one evening a week for tax assistance.

"THE FIRST LADY I helped gets all her withholding tax back. She made only $4,100 and with five children, she needs that money," said Bob Tesmer of Mount Prospect.

Church members contributing their time include Jan Hanson, John Cornwell and Kenneth Bender of Arlington Heights, Donald Jewart and Roy Olson of Mount Prospect; and Hank Gudrian of Rolling Meadows.

Who will be Walsh's John Walsh? It would have to be somebody with some control over his hours, perhaps someone

Park Vote Breakdown

Arlington Heights voters elected LeRoy Bressler and Thomas McShane to the park board in Tuesday's election.

Both candidates stated during their campaigns that the park board needed "new blood." Bressler is a retiring village trustee.

Out of 5,875 votes cast, Bressler received 3,961. Final totals showed the see-saw battle between incumbent John Edwards and challenger McShane had tipped in favor of McShane by 72 votes.

Candidate Nathaniel Leighton trailed other candidates in number of votes received throughout the returns. His final total was 1,743.

Theroux Sweeps Election

Republicans took an easy victory in the only contested Wheeling Township race Tuesday as the GOP candidate for assessor, Marshall Theroux, swamped Democratic rival Herman Koenenman. Final vote tally was 5,137 to 1,864.

Koenenman ran without official Democratic sanction and was faced with the initial handicap of running in a township with a 3-1 Republican-to-Democrat margin among registered voters.

Candidates' ideas about the office differed sharply in terms of the amount of time they thought it would take. Koenenman had promised that he would do nothing else; Theroux said he would give the office all it needed on a part-time basis. Both men live in Arlington Heights.

FOR THE REST of the Republican ticket, it was just a matter of waiting. They had had victory in the bag since the GOP Caucus nominated them in February.

Topping the TOP ticket is Mrs. Ethyl Kolerus of Mount Prospect who takes over in business for himself, like Walsh.

And there is the matter of location. Everyone on the board, save Walsh, are out of town workers. Unless, of course, one excepts George Burlingame who works in the cockpit of a Boeing 727 a couple of days each week.

There is no doubt that Walsh has been the most effective trustee on the board primarily because he was available to work with the administration.

Among those whom Walsh will automatically consider are persons currently serving on village boards and commissions, and trustee candidates recommended by the Caucus candidate selection committee who failed to be nominated in January.

THESE INCLUDE James McGinnis, 645 S. Burton, manager of the Chicago office of Shearson-Hammill, stockbrokers; Lionel Goulet, 720 S. Kaspar, an attorney with Universal Oil Products and a member of the Arlington Heights Youth Council; and Richard Durava, 611 W. Noyes, an accountant with a law degree employed by Northern Trust Co.

One thing at least is certain: With a new village president, three of six new trustees and a new clerk to boot, its going to be a very different board that is gavelled to order May 5.

Library Bd. Gains One

The uncontested election for Arlington Heights Memorial Library trustees Tuesday increased the board from six to seven members.

Elected to six-year terms were Francis J. Higgins and incumbents Mrs. Florence Hendrickson and Richard Frisbie. Higgins will join the board in May when trustees meet to elect new officers.

Other library board members are Robert Blackburn and Charles Edward, whose terms expire in April 1971, and Mrs. Natalie Wallace and George Beacham, in office until April 1973.

Moats Wins Applause

If applause is any indication, Larry Moats, the young Harper Junior College candidate, gained much support from Palatine residents Monday evening as he spoke at the League of Women Voters' candidates night.

One of three candidates seeking two positions on the college board, Moats was the only Harper candidate to attend the forum.

A student at the junior college, Moats got a comment on his age from someone in the audience.

"Most people here probably don't realize that you will be having your 21st birthday on April 10, just two days before the election," the questioner said.

HE CONTINUED WITH questions about Moats' beliefs concerning student and administrative policy at the college.

Moats began his reply with a thank-you. "I appreciate your comments, Mr. James Hamill, especially since you currently are a member of the junior college board."

It was then that Palatine residents responded with a ringing round of applause.

Hamill, of Palatine, was re-elected to a three-year term on the Harper board last April.

Other questions directed at the young candidate centered on changes he would try to bring in policy and activities at Harper.

Asked what existing policies he would like to see changed, Moats said reasons should be given when the board decides to dismiss a teacher.

In addition, he said students should be given some voice in hiring teachers, but not necessarily be given a vote in the matter.

HE WAS ASKED IF tax money currently is being used effectively by the college board.

"From my limited knowledge at the present time, I think it is, but the board might have gone overboard in the field of public relations, recently spending $55,000 in that area," he said.

When the formal discussion period for all candidates was completed, Moats was among the most popular office-seekers in terms of questions from individuals who wanted to know more about his candidacy.

The two incumbents, who were not present Monday night, also seeking voter approval in April 12's college board election are Richard Johnson and John Kuranz.

Dist. 59 May Forget 21-Cent Tax Hike

If legislation advocated by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie gets a General Assembly nod, School Dist. 59 residents may trade a possible 21-cent real estate tax increase for a 4 per cent state income tax.

Based on the governor's budget message to the Illinois General Assembly Tuesday, state aid to Dist. 59 may increase by as much as $1.3 million.

Ogilvie told state legislators he would like to see the minimum expenditure per child raised from $400 to $500, and it is reported that the all-important qualifying rate for state help will increase by only six cents under the governor's program.

The complicated formula for determining aid results in a figure of $2,735,500, an increase of $1,283,500.

School Dist. 59 officials are hoping for an increase in the range of $900,000 to $1 million, but they're not celebrating yet.

"Despite the magnitude of assistance possible for Dist. 59, other school districts won't get as much as they need, and some, like Chicago, are already complaining."

DISTRICT SUPT. Dr. Donald Thomas commented Tuesday that Ogilvie's proposals still have to get through the state House and Senate, adding, "No one has even introduced a bill as yet." Deadline for filing new bills in the General Assembly is April 13.

He added that to his knowledge the 90-cent proposed qualifying rate is still being debated, and there has been no official announcement on that. The clue to state aid is the qualifying rate — the minimum tax rate a school district must have to qualify for state help. Dist. 59's educational rate is $1.46 per $100 assessed valuation, well above the current minimum qualifying rate of 84 cents.

While increases in the minimum expenditure in Illinois help, alterations in the qualifying rate could affect districts the size of Dist. 59 in terms of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Additionally, a flat grant, currently $47 but proposed to go to $48, affects the amount of money distributed from Springfield. The grant is an amount of money given to every child in Illinois, regardless of the local district's rate, assessed valuation, or enrollment.

Other factors affecting the amount of state aid are valuation, currently $222 million in Dist. 59, and average daily attendance, currently 8,500. Through a complicated formula, all those factors are considered in deciding which school district gets what.

Despite the magnitude of assistance possible for Dist. 59, other school districts won't get as much as they need, and some, like Chicago, are already complaining.

Thomas isn't complaining, but he commented that the proposal has a long way to go before becoming law.

He has repeatedly said that if state aid is not increased, the district will have to think about a possible 21-cent tax rate increase of its own in October.

Additionally, he expects assessed valuation to increase this year to as much as $272 million, which if nothing else will help in terms of state aid, as well as local revenue.

But, said Thomas, there never seems to be enough money. He was on the way to the Elk Grove Township annual town meeting, to do battle for $100,000 in excess funds there.

Baptist Minister Ordained

Roger A. Creamer was ordained into the Gospel ministry Sunday at the Prospect Heights Baptist Church.

Creamer, who lives at 6 N. Wheeling Road, Prospect Heights, is youth pastor of the church. A graduate of Arlington High School; Pillsbury Baptist College, Owatonna, Minn., and Central Seminary, Minneapolis, he has a wife, Jan, and two children.

Participating in the service by presenting several special vocal numbers was the Moody Bible Institute Ensemble of Chicago.

The Ordination message, "Adorning the Gospel," from Titus 2:1-15, was given by Pastor Robert E. Rushing of the Prospect Heights Baptist Church.

John Zabel, Trinity Theological Seminary, Deerfield, presented the Charge to the Church. The Charge to the Candidate was given by Stanley Roglund of Trinity Theological Seminary. Robert Ancha, chairman of the board of deacons, led the Ordination and the Laying of Hands.

Church Moderator, Robert Voigt, presented the Ordination Certificate. A reception in honor of Pastor Creamer and his family followed the service.

McGlothlin Wants Behind-Scenes Job

A Chicago school teacher who made a heavy investment in formal education with G.I. Bill assistance is one of three candidates for a one-year term that High School Dist. 214 will fill April 12.

He is Don McGlothlin of 1047 Carol, Wheeling, a resident of an unincorporated section of Wheeling township.

McGlothlin has served on the Wheeling Dist. 21 school caucus and has had his name put in for endorsement there several times — though never successfully.

McGlothlin says he will give strong behind-the-scenes encouragement for greater teaching innovation and cites numerous articles he has written for the American School Board Journal and similar education publications as proof that he knows what he's about.

He says a school board member's job is not to run the schools but see that they are run.

HE PRAISES DIST. 214 for being "in the forefront" in the type of educational change he's interested in — "reorganization of secondary school faculties, utilization of space in school buildings and better utilization of teachers' time."

"I find that no matter how good the organization is there are always blocks of waste in both time and space," McGlothlin told a Herald reporter, advocating greater use of sub-professionals, paid less than teachers, for such duties as lunchroom and hallway supervision.

He says that too often "teachers are made into babysitters. We could pay teachers a lot more than we do now, if we could cut out the wasted time."

McGlothlin says, however, that pay is "just one of the factors" that lead to a district's getting better teachers. "You also need old-fashioned devotion. If someone is in teaching just for the money he should sell real estate."

He says he has taught in all 12 grades and served as a principal in a West Virginia school before being called into service in World War II. "Having been one, I don't envy the principals," he added.

AT THE SECOND war he went to graduate school with the intent of getting a doctorate but was called back into service before it could be completed.

A teacher at Chicago's Taft High School since 1954, he also serves as a lieutenant commander in the Naval Air Reserve and currently is personnel officer of a reserve unit at Glenview Naval Air Station.

As part of the interview, the Herald asked all Dist. 214 school board members two questions:

—What are your views on Citizens Committee suggestions that Dist. 214 consider an extended school day and/or operating the schools year-round?

—Would you encourage or discourage cooperation between Dist. 214 and the parochial high schools, through shared time, joint use of facilities, etc.?

McGlothlin said he suggested something similar to the extended-school day in a 1967 American School Board Journal article as a way to ease the teacher shortage. The three main ideas covered in that article, he said, were "utilization of school buildings for longer periods," teacher time-stretchers such as teacher aides and closed-circuit TV, and better, more efficient school organization.

"FIRST OF ALL, WE must stay within constitutional limits, but with in those limits, I would favor the closest cooperation possible with the parochial schools," said McGlothlin. "I am very much in favor of shared time — within constitutional limits."

McGlothlin added he "has sympathy for those people with double taxation," referring to taxpayers who send their children to private schools, and, in a decision-making spot as a school board member, he would "like to give them the benefit of the doubt."

McGlothlin urges a "yes" vote on all put before the voters April 12, although he recognizes that the tax increases sought are "pretty stiff."

"I'm not all out for every referendum," McGlothlin said. "But I think there is a need this time. It's just a case of keeping he would support school building plans that provide movable partitions, large and small study areas, to facilitate adjustable-class sizes that make it possible to 'get away from the lock-step' of a standard 30- to 35-student section."

"I like for us to have everything that's modern but I want to be sure the new building is functional," McGlothlin added. "I'm principally interested in what happens in class to the boys and girls themselves."

Form Fine Arts Organization

Parents and friends of students enrolled in music, speech, drama, dance, and art classes at Arlington High School recently formed a Patrons of the Fine and Performing Arts Organization.

The group approved a constitution and by laws and appointed a nominating committee at the group's first meeting held last week.

Merl Peek, 433 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights, was appointed temporary chairman of the group. Persons interested in becoming members of the group may contact Mr. or Mrs. Peek at 259-1532.

MEMBERS OF THE organization listed the group's goals:

—To develop a closer relationship among parents, school and community to foster interest and education of children in the fine and performing arts —To work with the school and the chairmen of the various school departments.

—To assist with the purchase of materials and equipment used in these departments.
